Farmers Reaping The Harvest, Each In Their Own Way, To Make America The Best Fed Nation In The World

Since the 1940s, wheat has been harvested with a combine as the general practice of farmers across America. Starting with pull-type machines that were rather primitive compared to today's huge, modern self-propelled monsters, farmers abandoned the binder and threshing rigs of earlier days.

For those who are old enough to remember, there was some farm family trauma in those first days of the combine. The older generation opposed the change based on the theory that the modern method failed to capture the chaff with the straw, and thus reduced the value of the straw to bed the steers. The next generation wanted to go modern and save the back-breaking work of shocking and loading the sheaves, and working the loose straw around in the barn mows in the heat of July's summer humidity.

It's hard to believe, isn't it, that more than half a century has passed since this drama played on the advancing farm scene? This was all happening as tractors were replacing horses as the preferred mode of power. There is some recollection that a tractor was used to pull the binder for a year or two before the combine finally took its accepted place in the records of history.

But in Amish communities in Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Maryland, and other states, time stands still. On local farms, neighbors can be seen in adjoining fields, each in their own way, bringing in the harvest. The older generation would be elated to know that at least some farmers have kept their common sense and still harvest wheat in the old-fashioned way.

In the photo above, the modern way can be seen on the farm of Chris Garman, located just east of Ephrata, close to the intersection of Routes 322 and 222 near the proposed new Wal-Mart center. Below, the Amish farmer and his family located north of Intercourse, along Scenic Road, use real horse power to get the job done. The boy on the horse yells in "Dutch" to keep all the horses in line to pull their share of the load, and the little tots in back get a free ride in the express wagon attached to the binder. What a joyous time a photographer can have on a Monday afternoon in the middle of harvest, recording the scenes of farmers as they again reap the bounties of the fields that make America the best-fed nation in the world.

TIPS TO IMPROVE EGGSHELL QUALITY...

Dr Milton Scott
Nutritional Consultant

"Let's get specific"

Check specific gravity of eggs on a regular basis to monitor shell quality The percent "floaters" and "eggs in transition" in a room temperature solution of 1.08 sp gr is a good bench mark

A 10 gal bucket, a hydrometer, and an individual egg scale is all the equipment you need Used with breeder guidelines, this test can help you fine-tune the level of oyster shell needed at each stage in the laying cycle.

For details on sp gr tests and the use of oyster shells, contact The Fox Co , PO Box 708, Newfield, NJ 08344 FAX 609/697-1692, Phone 800/257-7022

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

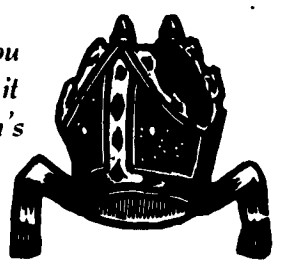
JULY 10-16, 1995

FULL BUCK MOON, JULY 12.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY

An English feast day, St. Swithin's Day on July 15 is regarded in weatherlore as a predictor of rain. St. Swithin was an Anglo-Saxon cleric who became the Bishop of Winchester He died circa A.D. 862 and it was his wish to be buried outside the church, rather than inside, so that the "sweet rain of heaven" would fall on his grave When he was canonized, centuries later, church authorities evidently saw fit to bring his remains indoors. On doing so, it is told, a torrential rain began that lasted 40 days

St. Swithin's day, if thou dost rain, For 40 days it will remain; St. Swithin's day, if thou be fair, For 40 days 'twill rain na mair [no more].



TIP OF THE WEEK

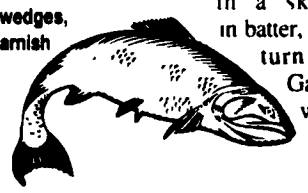
Salt sprinkled on the skillet before frying fish will prevent sticking.

FRIED FISH PUFFS

1 pound fillet of sole or flounder
2 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
pinch of thyme
1/2 cup oil
lemon wedges, for garnish

Cut larger fillets in half, so pieces are about 4 inches long. Beat egg whites until stiff and set aside. Beat yolks until thick, then stir in flour and seasonings. Fold in whites. Heat the oil in a skillet. Dip fish in batter, and fry. Carefully turn with a spatula. Garnish with lemon wedges.

Makes 4 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Kill a beetle and it will rain.

Step on an ant and there will be rain.

Expect rain when: cows don't give milk, bears are restless, crickets chirp, and goats bawl.

Rocks sweat before rain.

OPINION

Job Well Done

The National Holstein Convention held last week in Pittsburgh was an example of one of the greatest volunteer team efforts we have seen in a long time. These volunteer Pennylvania Holstein breeders and officials worked for four years to bring off this extravaganza.

The coordination of events, including farm and city tours, ladies' programs, business meetings, exhibits, and the national sale, in addition to a complete youth program of events and judging contests in another hotel, called for a staggering amount of legwork, committee meetings, and individual dedication.

Because the event was so successful, we want to add our congratulations to everyone who helped make it possible. To mention everyone would be impossible, but here are the convention committees as taken from the convention booklet:

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Register Century Farms

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is accepting applications for Century Farms.

To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years. A family member must live on the farm. Also, the farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holding or gross more than $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products.

Applications are available from your local county cooperative extension office. In Lancaster County, you may also receive free assistance in researching your deed by contacting the extension office at 394-6851.

Applications from Lancaster County processed before Oct. 1 will be honored at the Lancaster County Farm City Banquet on Nov. 21.

This is an excellent program to honor farm families and recognize the importance of family farms to agriculture. If your farm meets the criteria for this program, take time now and fill out the simple two-page form and assist us in promoting agriculture.

To Participate In Soybean Poll

The USDA will be conducting a poll of soybean producers to determine if there is interest in conducting a referendum on the continuance of paying refunds under the Soybean Promotion and Research Order.

The poll will be conducted at your county Consolidated Farm Service Agency (CFSA). This is your old ASCS office.

Farmers who certify that they produced soybeans between Sept. 1, 1991 through June 1, 1995 may participate. The poll will be conducted on July 26.

Absentee forms must be obtained and returned by July 14. The poll is designed to determine if refunds will continue to requesting farmers. If enough people do not vote for the referendum, the refunds will discontinue.

Farmers are now assessed 0.5 percent of net market value of soybeans they market.

To Apply For Fuel Tax Refund

The Pennsylvania Board of Finance and Revenue has mailed liquid fuel tax refund forms to farmers who have applied for refunds in the last two years.

State law exempts farmers from a 12 cent per gallon state excise tax if fuel is used for agriculture. Claims must include copies of paid receipts or a statement from your fuel dealer indicating gallons purchased, purchase dates, and verification that the state excise tax was paid.

The Board of Finance and Revenue must receive completed forms by September 1, 1995. If you did not receive a form you may request one from the Board of Finance and Revenue, 500C Finance Building, Harrisburg PA 17120, (717) 787-6534, or you may contact your state legislator's office.

Background Scripture:
Amos 4 through 5
Devotional Reading:
Amos 5:6-15

I didn't choose the text for this column. As you probably know, the texts are chosen by an ecumenical Uniform Lesson Committee.

I point that out only because this week's particular background scripture, Amos 4 and 5, rather clashes with a piece of mail that just arrived: an announcement for a National Day of Prayer Breakfast sponsored by a local religious foundation. The speaker will be a national personality known as both an outstanding athlete and a Christian. The price of the breakfast is $30 per person.

Even before I opened my Bible, it struck me that, at $30 per person for breakfast, there would be a lot of Christians in this city that could hardly afford to attend. Are prayer breakfasts only for the well-heeled, I wondered?

WHAT GOD DESPISES

Then, I opened to Amos 4 and 5 and this is what I found: "I hate, I despise your feasts, and I take not delight in your solemn assemblies. Even though you offer me your burnt offerings . . . I will not accept them . . . Take away from me the noise of your songs; to the melody of your harps I will not listen" (5:21-23). And I couldn't help adding, "Lord, what about prayer breakfasts at $30 a head?"

A rough calculation indicated they could gross between $15,000 and $50,000. So, I called the sponsoring foundation and asked to what purpose the funds from the breakfast would be used. I was told that htis is the foundation's major annual fund-raising event. Foundations have to have money, I know, and bills have to be paid for headquarters and staff and all of that. Still, this is a city in which there are inadequate shelters for the homeless, where people go hungry every day, a community where the basic needs of children and youth are not being met, and so on. Would anything come out of this event which would alleviate some of this human need?

I doubt it, but I hope I'm wrong.

I am not naming the foundation involved because I do not want to single them out for criticism. Among religious organizations there are lots of "worthy" events of this nature. There is nothing wrong with them per se and their hearts are usually in the right place. How can you go wrong touting the National Day of Prayer?

But, while we do all these things in the name of God and presumably for his benefit, aren't we getting wrapped up in the very things which divert us from what he wants of us? — "But let justice roll down like waters; and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream" (5:24).

WHAT GOD WANTS

The words "justice" and "righteousness" are not the words we speak at prayer breakfasts, convocations, rallies and so forth, but deeds that help those in need. Why does God condemn Israel? Because they "oppress the poor," "crush the needy," "afflict the righteous," and "turn aside the needy in the gate" (4:1,12).

Read the prophets of the Old Testament and you will see that the treatment of the poor, helpless and needy was always what their religion was about. Read the four Gospels and you will see that Jesus sounded the same note — helping the needy, not feasts, assemblies, or ritual offerings. But today we would rather hold a meeting about prayer, than pray for and help the needy. Holding meetings may become a substitute for giving a cup of cold water.

We are not saved by our meetings. Depending upon them, says Amos, it is "as if man fled from a lion and a bear met him" (5:19).

Look out for the bear!

ACME The Power Behind Environmental Control
Breeze Master

101 Cow Tie Stall Barn—Fleetwood, PA
Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!
At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as:
- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone
- Optional Belt Tightener

Estate owners, landscapers and farmers will appreciate the Kubota B-50 Series' wide choice of handy implements.

These include mid and rear mount mowers, front loaders, boxscrapers, backhoes, posthole diggers, snowblowers, even rotary tillers.

Kubota's remarkable B-50 Series compact tractors come with mid and 2-speed rear PTO. Optional Hydrostatic transmission. From 17-24 HP.

Kubota's optional "Bi-Speed Turn" system allows smaller and precise turns in 4-Wheel Drive, which makes mowing, and even loading more efficient.

Reverse air flow cooling directs radiator heat away from the operator for a comfortable, quiet ride. Low piston speed extends engine life.

Assembly Members Earn Praise Of Farm Bureau

ALBANY, N.Y. — The 25,000-member New York Farm Bureau recently offered high praise to several assemblymembers for bucking the emotion of the moment and voting "no" on a flawed pesticide reporting bill.

According to N.Y. Farm Bureau President John Lincoln, "We applaud all of those Assemblymembers who had the political courage to support science over emotion. Though they know that finding the cause of the terrible disease of breast cancer is vitally important, they realize that the pesticide recordkeeping and reporting bill would only burden farmers without achieving its goals."

Farm Bureau indicates that this legislation:

- has no provision for a research-oriented structure to objectively review and analyze the reported data.
- fails to include the reporting of homeowners' use of household, lawn care, and landscape pesticide.
- includes no funding for a state agency to implement any program or to collect the reported data.
- has no program structure by which a state agency could follow.

Those assemblymembers who voted "no" on the pesticide recordkeeping and reporting bill (A. 3755), include James Alesi, Richard Anderson, John Bonacic, Harold Brown, Nancy Calhoun, Anthony Casale, Robert D'Andrea, Donald Davidsen, Jay Dinga, Craig Doran, John Faso, Daniel Fessenden, John Guerin, Jerry Johnson, Thomas Kirwan, William Magee, Bernard Mahoney, Patrick Manning, Patricia McGee, Joel Miller, Charles Nesbitt, Robert Nortz, Chloe Ann O'Neil, Robert Oaks, Chris Ortloff, William Parment, Joseph Pillittere, Clarence Rappleyea, Thomas Reynolds, David Seaman, Frances Sullivan, Robert Warner, Robert Wertz, and Sandra Lee Wirth.

MMI Divests Eastern Best

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI) will divest itself of Eastern Best Products, a subsidiary based in Canton, Pa., the dairy cooperative announced.

Meeting June 30 in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI's board of directors voted unanimously on the action after receiving a recommendation from Eastern Best's board.

Eastern Best is a Northeast supplier of farm and home supplies which also operates several dairy stores.

Don Schriver, MMI's chief executive officer, said the cooperative was developing a plan to sell the operation by Oct. 1.

"Due to changing market conditions over the past few years, the business has lost money," Schriver said. "Several programs have been changed over the past 24 months to bring the company back to a profitable level, but without success."

He noted that the consumer trend toward buying products at super stores and warehouse types of operations have provided direct and tough competition for Eastern Best Products.

"The increasing cost of doing business, coupled with the declining customer sales that Eastern Best has been experiencing, left us with no other options," Schriver said. "We realize there are many families who have depended upon this service and have used it faithfully. However, we have no choice but to suspend operations.

MMI is the nation's third largest dairy cooperative and the 73rd largest U.S. food company. Headquartered in Strongsville, Ohio, MMI is owned by 9,000 dairy farmers in an 11-state area, including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, West Virginia, New York, Delaware, Vermont and Massachusetts. MMI annually markets and processes more than 7 billion pounds of milk worth an estimated $1 billion.

SWINE CONTRACT ALTERNATIVES

Roland P. Freund
Farm Management Agent

In the past decade there has been a virtual takeover of our swine industry by integrators or "contractors." However, the size and scale of their operations has not made these contractors immune from the problems of the marketplace.

Unfortunately, the "contract" has not protected the farmer from the difficulties, misfortunes, and insolvency of any contractor who has experienced problems. Many farmers have the potential of being left with empty buildings and nobody to stand behind the "contract." This is a major problem for both the farmer and the banker, who could be left holding the mortgage for a substantial balance on the facilities.

What alternatives do farmers have when they lose their contract?

1. Find another contractor. If other contractors are looking for more producers, it may be possible to join that organization. But they are likely to be very selective in whom they sign on. So it will probably be necessary to have clean and functional facilities, and if possible, a good previous production record to have much chance of being chosen.

2. Go back to being an independent producer. This will probably require substantial operating capital. Bankers may be unwilling, in the light of the industry outlook, to lend more money. But a business plan that is based on past documented performance and realistic assumptions could be convincing to a lender, providing it projects a healthy cash flow and some profitability.

3. Form an association of producers. If all the producers laid off by a contractor were to organize themselves into a marketing and buying organization, they would have sufficient clout in the marketplace to make their operations more profitable than they would be as independent operators. This would require trust, cooperation, and strong and effective management and leadership of the farmers involved.

4. Find alternative use for the facility. Single-purpose structures are not easily modified for other livestock applications. It is probably impossible to get them sufficiently manure- and odor-free for use as commercial storage, etc.

5. Liquidate the operation. Selling out may be the only option for some farmers in the light of the swine industry outlook. It is better to sell out while there is still some equity to recover than to continue with operating losses until bankruptcy is forced upon the operation. Unfortunately, swine buildings generally do not enhance the marketability of real estate in southcentral Pennsylvania.

If you wish to evaluate the financial impact of alternatives that you might be considering, contact your extension office and ask for your farm management agent.

We cannot do anything about the turmoil in the industry, but we can help you to find a solution that should be most beneficial for you in the long run.

Years ago, it was possible to rely upon the cycles in the marketplace to turn around and restore profitability to the swine business. That came about because a whole bunch of small producers cut back or dropped out of production in times of low price.

When the market is dominated by large operations which do not cut back in times of depressed prices, integrators try to hang onto their market share until they are forced right out of business. So now, the marketplace cannot be expected to "recover" until one or more of these "titans" sinks out of sight, dragging a lot of their farmers with them.

Unfortunately, we can expect that the battle will continue to be fought between the integrators, but at the cost of lower returns to the farmers. It might be a long time before the Northeast region and the national industry stabilizes, and even then it is unlikely that the farmers' margins will have shown any great improvement.

Meet George Cashell

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Dauphin Co.)—George Cashell, a PA DHIA technician, said that change can be good, as long as cooperation between all individuals is mutual.

Being a part of the dairy industry all of his life, George brings a wealth of knowledge to his dairymen in Franklin County and the Maryland area.

Having attended and graduated from Sherwood High School in Montgomery, Maryland, he immediately plunged into the agriculture industry.

Some of his past experience includes being a herdsman and managing farming enterprises. Also, being a self-employed dairy farmer, which included a partnership with his son Paul, allowed him the experience to interact in a partnership mode.

Over the years many organizations and associations have taken advantage of the leadership ability that George possesses. Having him serve on a committee can only enhance the ability for that committee to function at its best.

Some of the committees and boards of directors that he served on included the Pennsylvania Holstein Association where he served also on the executive committee, the Franklin County DHIA board, the 4-H Dairy Council where he served both as president and vice president, the Franklin County Development Committee where he had the opportunity to serve as president, Charter member of the Franklin County Fair board where he served as president for three years and also was the livestock manager, chairman of the 1988 Jr. Holstein Convention, chairman of the State Holstein Youth Committee for four years, executive board of the State Junior Dairy Show for two years and has been responsible for the placement of cattle at the Pa. All American Dairy Show for the past seven years.

When questioned about what he thinks about the future of DHIA, George is quick to admit that in these times of changes, people need to cooperate and not pull in different directions. He also added that change is good, and we must not ever be satisfied to just stand by and let things happen on their own.

Since becoming a DHIA technician, he has seen the system at Pa. DHIA go through many changes, mainly the change from the paper barnsheet to the computer. One of the advantages that Pa. DHIA technicians enjoy, is having the ability to tailor make virtually any report the dairymen may want on test day.

Through the 10½ years that he has been a Pa. DHIA technician, he has served as president and vice president of the Technician Association and has serve on many various committees.

Currently he tests 32 herds, which makes up 2,800 cows per month in his circuit. George also serves as a senior technician, which involves training of other technicians, promoting Pa. DHIA and filling-in for sickness and vacations.

George has received the Rookie of the Year Award and the Distinguished Service Award. He has also been a recipient of the Merit Award.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

Milkhouse Wastewater Field Day Set

HOLIDAYSBURG (Blair Co.) — Milkhouse waste water handling is surfacing as one of the biggest nuisances to dairying and a major concern of environmental agencies.

Blair County Agricultural Agencies have planned, through the financial assistance of the Pennsylvania Association of Sustainable Agriculture and the Blair Conservation District, an informational field day on July 18 at 10 a.m. dealing with milkhouse waste concerns and disposal options.

The field day will be held at the Rodrick and Trudy Hinish dairy farm located just south of Williamsburg on Clover Creek Road.

The field day will feature information on milkhouse waste water handling options that meet current milk sanitation and DER guidelines, waste water pumping options, and a tour of the Hinish dairy farm which boasts several new innovative installations. A complimentary luncheon will be served following the demonstrations and farm tour to all who register with the Blair Conservation District by calling (814) 696-0877 by July 14.

Representing the Department of Environmental Resources will be Zeke Brehm, operations chief for the water management program. Zeke will be explaining DER's guidelines and regulations on milkhouse waste. From the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will be Paul Hoge, milk sanitarian, who will focus on milkhouse waste's relation to farm inspections.

Following the brief informational session, Mr. and Mrs. Hinish will be offering a tour of their newly remodeled dairy operation, which features a flat barn milking parlor, a milkhouse waste transfer system and manure transfer system, a new open front barn with a flush system, a separator and an earthen, liquid storage pond located across the highway. Contractors and dealers in the various systems will be on hand to provide information as well.

Dealers in several types of milkhouse water pumps and irrigation systems will also be exhibiting their equipment.

Lancaster Conservation Expo July 15

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—Lancaster County has a growing population of conservation minded people asking questions such as "How are the resources going in Lancaster County?" and "How can we enhance the quality of the county's resources?"

In reference to these questions, the Lancaster Conservation District in partnership with other public and private groups will be hosting the conservation event of the year, the annual Conservation Exposition.

The Exposition is a red-letter day for the whole family to take part in, filled with activities highlighting innovative conservation that farmers, sportsmen, and other neighbors are encouraging. Visitors will see the highlights of the work that their neighbors are involved in the enhancement and preservation of the productive powers of Lancaster County's natural resources.

Gratz Antique Machinery Show Set

GRATZ (Dauphin Co.)—The third annual Gratz Area Antique Machinery Association, Inc. Show will contain a little something new and a whole lot of something old.

This year's show will include a parade up Main Street in Gratz, which will begin on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. Another addition this year will be live entertainment on Saturday evening, beginning at 6:30 p.m., provided by the Wolfe family. Weather permitting, they will perform on the outdoor stage. Bring a lawn chair and enjoy the music!

As in prior years, setup for exhibitors will begin on Friday, July 14. PA sire harness racing has been scheduled on Friday afternoon at 4 p.m.

The 'Something Old' will include antique tractors, gas engines, steam engines and many pieces of antique farm machinery and equipment, plus antique trucks and cars. Last year, more than 230 tractors were on display.

This year the feature tractor will be "Case" and the feature gas engine will be "Fairbanks-Morse." Plaques will be given to exhibitors.

If you are interested in exhibiting any type of antique farm machinery or equipment, your display will be welcomed. Other displays and demonstrations are also planned. They will include broom making, sawmill, shingle mill, dynamometer and baker fan operation and toy displays.

Farm toys as well as various flea market and craft items will be on sale. Food and non-alcoholic drinks will be available at the Gratz area Fire Co. No. 1 building on the fairgrounds.

Other activities planned for the weekend include a tractor parade on the racetrack in front of the grandstand, tractor games such as barrel rolling and wagon backing, pedal tractor pulls, threshing, and stationary baling. Antique tractor pulls are scheduled to begin on Saturday at 4 p.m. and a church service has been scheduled on Sunday at 9 a.m.

The show will be held on the fairgrounds, east of Gratz, along Route 25. The price of admission is $1 and parking is free.

This 1949 Fordson Major owned by Clarence Welker is connected to a power belt drive attached to an Avery threshing machine. The Avery is owned by Rick Welker. Both owners live near Gratz.

Thoroughbred Industry Cultivates Japanese Connection

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — While conflicting opinions between state-of-the-art automobile manufacturers in the United States and Japan made headline news during early May, a small group of thoroughbred boosters from Maryland and Japan prepared to follow American humorist Mark Twain's century-old philosophy that "a difference of opinion is what makes horse races."

To that end, Yutaka Yoshioka, chairman of the Japan Association of International Horse Racing, spent a day recently visiting segments of Maryland's thoroughbred industry. Yoshioka's stops in the Old Line State included Pimlico Race Course in Baltimore, home of the famed Preakness Stakes; Northview Stallion Station at Chesapeake City, home of the first and second leading sires in the Mid-Atlantic region, and the Dark Hollow horse farm near Upperco, breeder of the Eclipse Award winner, Safely Kept.

Arrangements for Yoshioka's Maryland tour were coordinated by Malcolm J. Commer Jr., livestock economist for the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland at College Park. Commer is stationed at the Extension Service's Agricultural Marketing Center, located near Queenstown, Md.

Commer had met Yoshioka during a two-week trip to Japan last December in an effort to enhance prospects for exports of U.S. thoroughbred horses. Commer is the coordinator for a marketing project, originally funded by the USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service and the Southern United States Trade Association through the Maryland Department of Agriculture under an agreement with the University of Maryland.

Also accompanying the Japanese thoroughbred representative on the Maryland tour were Dr. Henry A. Virts, deputy secretary, Maryland Department of Agriculture; Paul W. Scheidt, executive director of the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation; Dr. Sheldon S. Steinberg, executive vice president, International Bridge, Inc.; and Richard W. Wilcke, executive vice president of the Maryland Horse Breeders Association.

Already, Commer is exploring funding sources to support a possible series of educational seminars, starting in 1996, that would deal with common issues affecting the U.S. and Japanese thoroughbred industries. The first seminar is scheduled to be held in Japan in June 1966.

Funding to support the seminars is expected to come from a combination of industry and government sources in both Japan and the United States.

Maryland hosts pose with Yutaka Yoshioka, center, chairman of the Japan Association of International Racing, during Yoshioka's one-day tour of the Maryland thoroughbred industry. Shown are Dr. Malcolm J. Commer Jr., livestock economist for the Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland at College Park; Paul W. Scheidt, executive director of the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation; and Dr. Henry A. Virts, deputy secretary, Maryland Department of Agriculture. Behind them is Private Terms, one of the leading sires at Northview Stallion Station near Chesapeake City, Md.

The Fly Season

It's summertime. The weather is hot and muggy, and flies are a major bother to you and your cows.

And on top of that, your neighbor threatens to go to the township supervisors and get them to do something about your flies attacking their property.

Nobody likes to swat flies at the dinner table that may then fall into the iced tea or mashed potatoes, but your neighbors are even less understanding.

Poultry houses and swine operations have major problems coping with flies, but dairy farms can also present problems if certain practices are not followed.

Fly control management should be a combination of cultural, biological, and chemical practices. Some of the key points include:

Cultural Control

1. Sanitation, sanitation, and more sanitation. The life cycle of a fly requires that immature flies (eggs, larvae, pupae) live in manure, moist hay, spilled silage, wet grain, etc., for 10-21 days. Prime areas for breeding flies include animal pens (especially calf housing), poorly drained free-stalls, stall barn gutters, wet feed in mangers and bunks as well as feed and forage accumulation around silos. Gutters and mangers should be cleaned daily and pens and feed around silos should be cleaned weekly.

2. Sticky Ribbons. They can manage low or moderate fly populations as long as they are changed every 1-2 weeks to keep them from drying out, getting coated with dust, or becoming saturated with flies.

3. Keep milk house a fly-free zone. Screen doors and windows must be installed and maintained. Traffic in and out of the milk house should be kept to a minimum. The occasional fly that does get in can be controlled with sticky tapes, light traps, or certain approved insecticides.

4. Prevent flies from immigrating from the farm to your neighbors. By spreading manure and bedding as thinly as possible in the field, it will dry down quickly and inhibit the fly cycle. Incorporating the manure in the soil also helps. Correct drainage problems around barnyards that allow manure and mud to accumulate along fence lines.

Biological Control

Flies do have natural enemies that are commonly present in dairy barns. Beetles and mites devour fly eggs and larvae, adult flies are prone to disease, and fly pupae are attacked by parasitic wasps.

The wasp best adapted to Northeast dairy farms is Muscidifurax raptor. These wasps are like "smart bombs" in that they live only to find and kill fly pupae. They sting the fly pupae, killing the fly, and lay their egg inside the pupae which then hatches in three weeks to continue the cycle.

This seemingly perfect solution to fly control has a few problems that give flies a fighting chance.

First, flies develop twice as fast from egg to adult, live longer, and lay more eggs than the parasitic wasp. Consequently, in late May and early June, parasitic wasp populations are usually behind that of the fly by several weeks.

Secondly, parasitic wasps are less tolerant of insecticides. Residual sprays such as permethrin, dimethoate, and rabon are highly toxic to the wasps. Parasitic wasp populations can be conserved by using compatible insecticides such as methomyl scatter baits and pyrethrin space sprays.

The Muscidifurax raptor parasitic wasp can be purchased and released weekly beginning in the middle of May at the rate of 200/cow and 1000/calf. The cost for the summer varies from $2.60 to $4.70 per cow, but in many cases, the farm will use 80 percent less insecticides, which more than offsets the cost.

Chemical Control

There are numerous insecticides on the market — both knock-down and residual sprays. Be careful to read the label, follow any safety precautions, and apply as directed. And, maybe they should be used as a last resort after the above-mentioned cultural and biological methods have been tried.

Good fly control not only makes life on the farm more enjoyable for you, your family, and your employees, but it can be a major ingredient in a good neighbor policy.

Newly Selected FFA Officers Talk About Goals

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — At the recent state FFA convention, 11 new officers were selected to serve the organization.

Selected were Darla Herr, state president; Mark Heeter, southcentral vice president; Marci Erway, northcentral vice president; Heather Benner, statewide vice president; Shannon Horst, chaplain; Joshua Troxell, reporter; Tonya Anthony, treasurer; Jeremy Bartels, western vice president; Carrie Hetrich, eastern vice president; Jennifer Grimes, secretary; and Lloyd Bier, sentinel.

President

Darla Lynn Herr, named Pennsylvania FFA president, is the daughter of Robert and Ruthanne Herr, Hershey.

Darla, 18, and four-year Little Dutchmen FFA member, indicated that serving as state president "would be one way to pay back to the FFA what it has given me.

"To become a state officer has been a goal of mine for a long time," according to Darla. She noted that members of her family served in the state organization.

"I am excited about the FFA organization and feel confident that I can encourage others to get involved."

Darla's FFA adviser is Stan Bucher.

Southcentral Vice President

Mark Allan Heeter, 18, was selected to serve as southcentral vice president. Mark, son of Rex and Betty Heeter, Martinsburg, is a five-year Central Cove FFA member.

Mark indicated that FFA has broadened his experience — even to the point of setting up an FFA-type student organization in the former Soviet Union.

"FFA has enabled me to meet others, speak better, and travel worldwide," Mark noted. "If it were not for the FFA, I would never have made numerous friends while attending various leadership conferences, have developed my speaking ability through contests and community functions, have attended a meeting to start an FFA-style student organization in the former Soviet Union, or have been able to meet both President Clinton and Boris Yeltsin."

Mark indicated that while serving as state officer, "I hope to make other FFA members aware of these and other opportunities available to them. I have a dream to serve as a Pennsylvania state FFA officer because I want to give other FFA members a chance at the opportunities that I experienced."

Mark's adviser is Thomas Ritchey.

Northcentral Vice President

Margaret Ann Erway, 18, was chosen as northcentral vice president.

Margaret "Marci" Erway is the daughter of Dana E. and Ginger A. Erway, Coudersport. The four-year Spud Growers FFA member indicated students should learn "about the benefits of FFA and how it is not just agriculture, but it is also about human relations, communications, social abilities, and citizenship."

Marci noted she desires to serve as a state officer "so I can give back to the FFA what it has provided for me. The FFA has given me the opportunity to develop into an outgoing, enthusiastic student, wanting to improve myself and others all around me."

Marci's adviser is Earl K. Brown.

Statewide Vice President

Heather Lynn Benner, 18, has been chosen to be statewide vice president.

Heather, daughter of Glenn and Brenda Benner, Millerstown, is a five-year Greenwood FFA member.

Heather noted, "My mom always tells me, 'We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give.'" Heather indicated that the people in FFA "have given to me encouragement and support and therefore made my life better.

"I know the responsibilities of state officers are great, but any sacrifice would be worth it to see the members, who are the future of our organization, succeed."

Heather's adviser is MeeCee Baker.

Chaplain

Four-year Grassland FFA member Shannon M. Horst was selected as state chaplain.

Shannon, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey L. Horst, Narvon, thanks his fellow members and adviser for support.

"The past and present state officer teams have encouraged me toward every goal I've ever dared to dream," noted Shannon. "For those unselfish enrichments, I would like to thank the entire FFA organization."

Shannon's adviser is Clifford Day.

Reporter

Five-year Grassland FFA member D. Joshua Troxell was selected state FFA reporter.

"The FFA has taught me about personal development and goal setting," Josh indicated.

The 19-year-old son of David and Constance Troxell, Mohnton, was able to "succeed in FFA, and now I would like to show others how they can do the same."

Josh's advisers are Clifford Day and Robert Lauffer.

Treasurer

Marion Center FFA member Tonya Renee Anthony was chosen state FFA treasurer.

Because of her enrollment in the agricultural education progam at Marion Center High School, Tonya became "very active in the FFA and learned new skills," she indicated.

"I am now a better leader in my school and community, and have improved my public speaking skills.

"As an FFA officer, I have learned the importance of working with others on a team and being responsible as an individual."

Tonya, 18, daughter of Edward and Karen Anthony, Rochester Mills, noted that she has "always enjoyed meeting new people and learning about others."

While officer, Tonya noted that as she met younger FFA'ers, she hopes "they could look to me as a role model."

Tonya's advisers are John Fyock and Jeremy Cattau.

Western Vice President

"If I can at least touch one person while I am in office and encourage them to run for an office, I feel that I will have succeeded knowing I changed someone's life in a great way," indicated Jeremy Louis Bartels, selected state FFA western vice president.

Jeremy, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bartels, Somerset, is a three-year member of Somerset FFA.

Jeremy's adviser is Andy Hipple.

Eastern Vice President

Carrie Lynn Hetrick, 20, daughter of Randall and Cynthia Hetrick, Boyertown, was chosen as state eastern vice president.

Carrie, six-year Oley Valley FFA member, indicated that when she joined FFA, "I was very shy and withdrawn and lacked self-confidence. FFA changed my life dramatically. Because of the efforts of older members and conferences and contests that taught me how to set goals, I too have realized dreams."

Carrie, who indicated she traveled to Germany, has completed her freshman year at Penn State as an agricultural science major.

Carrie's adviser is James Howe.

Secretary

Jennifer Lynn Grimes, selected as state secretary, once had to relocate her membership simply to stay in the organization.

"Prior to my junior year, my school decided to discontinue the Hamburg FFA. I transferred to the Tulpehocken School District to participate in the unlimited opportunities and educational experiences of FFA."

Jennifer, 19, daughter of Kenneth L. Grimes, Strausstown, is a five-year member of Tulpehocken FFA.

She noted, "We need more advocates to convey the importance of FFA to school board directors, administrators, company officials, and students. As a state officer, I would continue to be an advocate for FFA."

Jennifer's adviser is Barry Kellner.

Sentinel

Selected as state sentinel was Lloyd Glen Bier.

Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd B. Bier, Jr., Carlisle and a four-year member of the Big Spring FFA, set his goals by example.

"When I started the ag program at Big Spring, I noticed how Jennifer Miller and Mike Corman, chapter officers, worked to become leaders in the chapter and then become state officers," noted Lloyd. "Becoming a state officer has been a dream of mine ever since. I would continue to develop leadership skills, motivate other FFA members, and learn how to become part of a team."

After a day of area dairy tours, convention activities will kick off with a Host Reception Bar-B-Que on Thursday evening, August 17.

Attendees at Friday morning's General Business Session will hear the annual address by NAAB Chairman of the Board, Bruce Bean. All technicians who have serviced over 100,000 cows, as well as industry sales people who have sold over 500,000 units of semen, will be recognized with a plaque presentation ceremony. After a break, the spouses depart for lunch at a French-style restaurant and followed by a tour of the Richard Nixon Library and birthplace. The rest of the morning session will focus on the business at hand with NAAB President Gordon A. Doak giving the Call to Order, Call to the meeting, and the reading of any proposed resolutions which may come before the assembly. The Chairman of the Nominating Committee, Roger Ripley, will report on candidates for the NAAB Board of Directors.

Speakers at the afternoon Educational Session will feature discussion on current industry issues including a report on the market development survey recently conducted by NAAB/USDA and packed with much needed and helpful information.

Thursday evening's banquet will include the NAAB Awards Ceremonies. This year's recipients are: Richard H.L. Chichester, Select Sires, NAAB Distinguished Service Award; Clarence Boyke, Select Sires, Member Director Award; Howard C. Kellgren, Select Sires, Pioneer Award; and Dr. Margaret Dentine, University of Wisconsin-Madison, Research Award.

At Saturday morning's business session NAAB voting delegates will elect three directors to fill the three vacant positions. Those whose terms expire this year are Dan Ranney, Excelsior Farms, Ken Persyn, Medina Valley Genetics, and Pete Blodgett, (eligible for reelection) Landmark Genetics.

Registration deadline is July 5 to avoid late registration fees. Hotel registration must be received by the Red Lion Hotel no later than July 24 to guarantee rates and availability. For convention registration information contact Teddy Heckman, Landmark Genetics, P.O. Box 939, Hughson, CA 95326-0939 (Tel: 209-883-4001).

Spencer, Rodgers Receive Dairy Science Association Awards

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Two of Penn State's leading dairy scientists received awards at the 90th Annual Meeting of the American Dairy Science Association, held last month at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York.

Steve Spencer, professor of dairy science, received the Alfa Laval Agri Dairy Extension Award, which recognizes individuals who have made noteworthy contributions to the dairy industry. Spencer's work in milking management and systems related to hygiene, udder health and milk quality has led to new liner design for milking equipment, resulting in reduced bacterial transmission. He is a widely sought international speaker, consultant, expert witness, and leader of professional societies.

Gary Rogers, associate professor of dairy and animal science, was presented with the Young Scientist Award of the Northeast Section of the American Society of Animal Science/American Dairy Science Association. The award honors Rogers for his contributions to the animal sciences in teaching and research. Rogers is recognized for his work with the physical traits of dairy cattle and their relationship to productive herdlife. His Expected New Revenue$ (ENR$) index has proven useful to the breeding industry in ranking sires. The ENR$ concept incorporates information on the most important production and physical traits as well as the associated costs. Lists of sires ranked on ENR$ are published twice a year both electronically and in a leading trade publication.

Mid-East Changes Name

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The Mid East United Dairy Industry Association Board of Trustees recently voted to change the name of the corporation to American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East.

The new name capitalizes on the existing equity of the American Dairy Association in advertising, retail and foodservice marketing, and processor relations. Dairy Council is a highly recognized name with schools, health professionals and the media.

"American Dairy Association Mid East and Dairy & Nutrition Council Mid East, the current divisions of Mid East UDIA, have been doing business for more than 50 years under their respective names in this region," said Scott Higgins, general manager.

"By renaming the corporation to American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, the promotion program will have more immediate recognition with the dairy industry, the market and consumers."

Mid East UDIA is the dairy-producer funded advertising, promotion, marketing and nutritional education organization serving Ohio, West Virginia, northern Kentucky and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

Maryland Exports Ice Cream

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley has announced that the Lee Ice Cream company out of Baltimore has received an order to send a 40-foot container of ice cream to South Korea.

The order resulted from contacts the company made at the U.S. Food Export Showcase in Chicago in May and will amount to some 200,000 cups of ice cream.

"We are extremely pleased that more and more Maryland food companies are selling their outstanding products around the world. This is good for Maryland business and Maryland agriculture. I congratulate Lee's Ice Cream for doing an excellent job of promoting their product," Riley said.

The sale of Lee's ice cream to South Korea, marks the second major export shipment for the company. Earlier Lee's shipped ice cream to Saudi Arabia.

"What Lee's is doing is an example of what many other Maryland food companies are also accomplishing. Maryland value added food products can now be found in Europe, Asia, South and Central America and the Middle East," Riley said.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture has an aggressive international marketing program designed to promote Maryland agriculture and food businesses. Herbicide Studies At Weed Field Day

Plant, First Cut Early To Fight Alfalfa Weeds

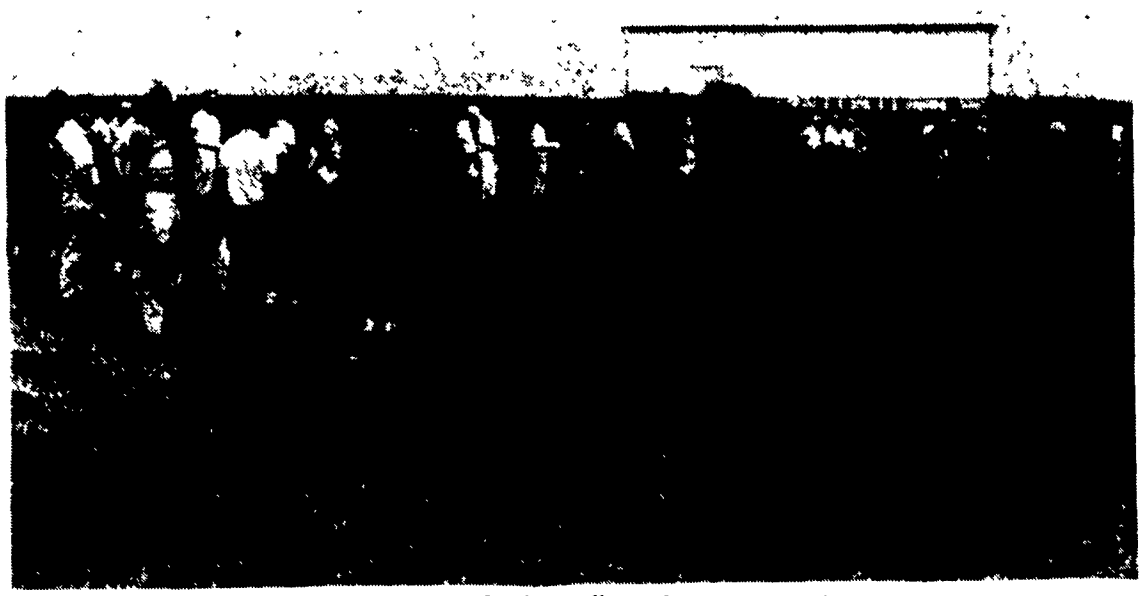
ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The early bird gets the first worm, so the story goes. Just so, early seeding of alfalfa and prompt harvesting may be the best weapons against weeds and their effects on forage quality, according to a Penn State forage expert.

As the result of studies undertaken by Penn State, fewer weeds and greater yields could be possible by seeding alfalfa in April instead of May and harvesting 60 days after emergence, said Dr. Marvin Hall, associate professor of forage management at Penn State, at the annual Penn State-sponsored Weed Field Day at the Southeast Research Farm.

On Thursday morning, Hall told about 100 farmers and agri-industry representatives at the field day that, by waiting too long to cut newly seeded alfalfa in hot weather, the alfalfa can't compete as well against the weeds.

As the result of studies undertaken by Penn State, fewer weeds and greater yields could be possible by seeding alfalfa in April instead of May and harvesting 60 days after emergence, said Dr. Marvin Hall, associate professor of forage management at Penn State, at the annual Penn State-sponsored Weed Field Day at the Southeast Research Farm.



Those attending had a chance to look at a "weed screen" to show the effects of different herbicide treatments on a wide variety of weeds.

In the study, alfalfa was band-seeded at 15 pounds per acre into a tilled seedbed in 1991 at the research facility and in 1991 and 1992 at the Russell E. Larson Agriculture Research Center at Rockspring at four times during the growing season. In addition, various weed control practices were used.

Researchers observed the weed severity and control at both locations, using various herbicides at different application types and times. Weeds observed included lambsquarters, pigweed, foxtail, chickweed, and others, in a range of 10 percent to 70 percent of total dry matter harvested.

The question facing the researchers: do weed control practices in the study increase forage yield and/or quality?

The research concluded, said Hall, that "the answer is no, we didn't see an increase in yield or quality," despite the various chemical applications and under a range of weed pressures. Even late summer seeding showed no improvement in forage quantity or quality.

The key, according to Hall, may be to plant and harvest early. Hall indicated that alfalfa is very competitive against weeds early on in the growing season and can recover from a cutting 60 days after emergence.

This also applies to late summer seeding. To compete against late summer weeds, Hall suggests planting in August versus September.

But if alfalfa is to be seeded in fields that lay fallow or were in another crop, and the weed density is "horrendous," the question remains: will using weed control practices increase net economic return per acre?

Hall said, "economically, can we do it? That is the question."

The conclusion: different seeding dates and weed control practices did not result in consistent differences in net economic return/acre during the seeding year, first-production year, or for both years combined. Early summer seedings had similar economic returns per acre in the year after seeding as no weed control.

When alfalfa is either spring- or summer-seeded and weed infestations are light to moderate, weed control practices are not economically beneficial and may slightly

Also at the field day, Dr. Greg Roth, Penn State assistant agronomy professor, indicated that he has received many reports from around the state that there has been "lousy stands in corn." According to Roth, this could be the result of insect and fungi damage to the seed.

Herbicide studies looked at weed control in no-till and conventional till corn. Steve Cain, operations manager, Agway in Pleasant Gap, inspects weed emergence.

Ciba/FMC Hold Annual New Holland Farm Tour.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The annual tour and summer picnic for fertilizer and chemical dealers and their applicators sponsored by joint effort of Ciba, FMC, The Lancaster County Extension Service and the adult farmer program at Eastern Lancaster County School District was held last Friday. Three school bus loads of participants left the New Holland Community Park and traveled to the Paul Kurtz farm, located south of town, to view pre and post herbicide options in corn and soybeans, and to evaluate Canada thistle, and burcumumber trials. In addition, field trials in no-til plantings and an educational program for corn borer and rootworm control was held.

"This annual tour brings together the companies and their representatives to see how the chemical and herbicide trials have gone," said Jeff Stoltzfus, adult education instructor at Garden Spot. "Not only do they see the products and learn what different rates of application have worked, we try to have something of special education, as well.

"We have a lot of burcucumber and Canada thistle here, so it makes a good place for the scientist to see the products in action. In addition, we have special trial beds where we released cutworms to see how much damage is done in a short period of time and how the products worked.

The New Holland Ciba/FMC tour proves to be one of the most popular yearly tours in Lancaster County. A noon lunch was provided by the companies. Tara Soper, Ciba representative, and Steve Fisher, FMC representative, hosted the tour and lunch.

The cutworm trial plots proved interesting to the tour visitors.

reduce net return per acre because of additional costs compared with seeding with no nurse crop or herbicide.

Hall recommended that only if at least 50-60 percent of the dry matter is weeds after first harvest should a herbicide be used. Also, if the stand starts to thin down, and weed pressure increases dramatically, herbicide treatments should be used.

If weed infestation is not anticipated (based on previous weed problems in the field) to be severe during alfalfa establishment, the researchers do not recommend the use of a nurse crop or herbicides for weed control.

Whatever the decision is, Hall said it is important not to "ignore management techniques and herbicides and expect to get away with it."

Also at the field day, Dr. Greg Roth, Penn State assistant agronomy professor, indicated that he has received many reports from around the state that there has been "lousy stands in corn." There have been scattered reports that corn establishment has been spotty, with many of those fields planted between May 1-10. Also, heights are irregular.

According to Roth, this could be the result of insect and fungi damage to the seed. Because of the warm winter, plant pests overwintered and made their presence known.

In some cases, seed germination in fields was reduced as much as 20 percent — 10 percent higher than the standard. Germinating seed may have been under attack by seed corn maggots, wire worms, and seed rot.

In the field at the research station, planted May 1, germination was reduced from 21,000 plants to 16,000 plants per acre.

Roth recommended that growers follow a standard three-way seedbox treatment, combining various seed fungicide and pesticide treatments, to protect the seed.

He indicated more research on the problem was needed.

Also at the field day, those attending had a chance to look at a "weed screen," to show the effects of different herbicide treatments on a wide variety of weeds.

Rain Couldn't Dampen Spirit Of Bradford Farm-City Day

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

EAST CANTON (Bradford Co.) — In spite of a constant mist and occasional shower, nearly 800 people attended the third annual Bradford County Farm-City Day held recently at LeRoydale Farm.

Located in the southwest corner of Bradford County, LeRoydale Farm has been in the Brackman family for about 80 years. The farm is owned and operated by brothers Paul and Owen Brackman and Paul's wife, Nancy and son, Jon.

Guernseys are the breed of choice for the family. However, in recent years, they have added more and more Holsteins to their 70-cow milking herd. Today the herd consists of about 50 Guernseys and 20 Holsteins. They also raise about 50 calves and heifers.

"Guernseys are hard to find if you want to buy any," said Owen, "and we've had a hard time raising calves."

The 500-acre farm includes 200 tillable acres where they raise most of their own feed.

"We raise all our own forages and use high moisture corn," said Owen.

The day's events featured all aspects of farming, from emu ranching to maple syrup production and from gardening to full-scale dairy farming.

Free food was another highlight of the day, as visitors were encouraged to sample a milkshake made with real dairy products, veal brautwurst, and roast beef sandwiches called Tailgate Rollups.

"Despite the weather, people who exhibited felt good about (the event) and we gave out nearly 600 milkshakes through Eastern Best Products, MMI, and Milky Way Farms," said Frank Bertrand, Farm-City Day coordinator.

Attendees also had the opportunity to tour a managed woodlot, area veal farms, and a reconstructed wetland designed to filter wastewater from a veal barn.

Joe Brackman of Sylvandale Forestry led visitors through the tour of the woodlot.

"I have the history of the woodlot that I wrote down as far as what kind of management has gone on there over the past 10 years. We just walked through and looked at what's coming back and tried to give them an idea of the whole purpose and objectives of what's happened up there," he said.

Rain Couldn't Dampen Spirit

Through management, the Brackmans are trying to re-establish oak, maple, ash, and poplar in the area.

"We've had a lot of competing species that are coming in that are basically weeds, so we're in a non-stop battle with them," he said.

Another tour opportunity was to travel south of Canton to Earl Ridall's veal barn, and to a constructed wetland adjacent to a veal barn owned by Roger and Carol Hikock.

"The veal barn tour was very well received and we're going to concentrate more on that next year because a lot of farmers had never toured a veal farm before," said Bertrand. "So were the tours to the reconstructed wetland that they're using to filter the veal water run off."

People also enjoyed seeing emus and llamas up close as well as watching the sheep shearing demonstrations.

"This year we had more exhibitors and more variety of exhibitors," said Bertrand.

As with each Farm-City Day event, the goal is to reach the non-farm population, giving them a chance to learn about farming up close. In the past, attendance at the event has been about 75 percent non-farm and 25 percent farm. This year, the committee estimates that fewer non-farm people attended the event.

"Even though it drizzled all day, we got a lot more farmers than we figured. This year attendance was about 50-50 non-farm to farm," said Bertrand. "Our goal is to get the non-farm people out."

Although next year's plans are uncertain, committee members strongly believe that the event will be held because of the increasing support.

"Even more people contributed this year than last year, we think that the Farm-City program is a solid program for Bradford County. After going through it three times, we hope it to be a yearly tradition now," said Bertrand.

Acreage Reports More Vital Than Ever Before

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Farmers were reminded that their crop insurance and certain U.S. Department of Agriculture benefits are in jeopardy if they fail to file their planted acreage reports on time.

The reminder, from Jenifer Hershey, acting county executive director of the Consolidated Farm Service Agency, said that crop insurance acreage reports must be signed by the insured or a designated agent by the required deadline, which differs by crop and locality.

Acreage reports for farm program purposes must still be filed at the CFSA office; however, crop insurance acreage reports must also be filed with the insurance provider. If insured through a private crop insurance agent, the crop insurance acreage report must be submitted to that agent. If farmers purchased the basic, catastrophic insurance coverage (CAT) through the CFSA office, they can sign their crop insurance acreage reports at the same time they report acreage for farm program purposes, Hershey said.

The other major risk management program, termed the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP), applies only to those crops for which insurance is not available. NAP provides a comparable level of benefits as that offered under CAT, but no premiums are charged. Planned acreage of NAP-covered crops must be reported on time to the CFSA office, or no NAP benefits will be paid, if a crop loss occurs.

The CAT and NAP coverages replace the ad hoc crop disaster programs of past years. Unlike previous disaster programs, however, they require timely reports of planted acreage to receive benefits.

Acreage reporting dates for crop insurance and NAP in Lebanon County are oats - May 31 (exception: can be reported July 15 if reported with one of the following crops): Corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, sweet corn, tobacco - July 15 and uninsured (NAP) crops - July 15.

Hersheys Host Lancaster Field Day

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — Dale and Deb Hershey of Mill-Springs Holsteins in Kinzers are serving as this year's host for the annual field day for the Lancaster County Holstein Club.

The event is set to be held from 10 a.m. to 2:15 p.m., August 3.

The annual field day provides an opportunity for club members and people with an interest in the dairy cattle breed to get together, learn more about the breed and enjoy family oriented fellowship and fun.

On Monday, Dale said that the meal is to be catered by Yoder's Deli of Intercourse, and that in order to prevent any problems with food supply, he is asking that those who intend to attend please let him know before July 20.

The price of the event is $5 per adult and $2.50 per child if registration is made prior to July 20. Add 25 cents to the cost if registration is made after that date.

The schedule for the field day is full. Featured speaker is to be auctioneer Horace Backus, well-known Holstein enthusiast who has been reading pedigrees, breeding, selling and buying the black and white cattle for years.

Rather than give a formal talk, Backus is to discuss the breed through a question and answer forum.

Although not specifically set as of this week, Hershey said he plans to have three classes of animals for judging. Bob Knutsen, of Rising Sun, Md., is to serve as judge for the day.

There are separate competitions for the men, women and youth, with prizes for the top scores in each of the classes. Many door prizes are to be presented during the day.

Also, for entertainment, a neighbor, Elmer Lapp, is to offer hay wagon rides pulled by a team of his prize-winning Belgian horses.

Guests should bring lawn chairs. A food tent is to be set up in the front lawn of the farm house, located across the road from the Hershey Mennonite Church at the junction of New Holland Road and Hershey Church Road. Dale said that guests should park in the church's lot.

Another tent is to be set up in a pasture next to the front lawn for the judging.

Dale said they also plan to have games for the children.

Those attending are also invited to tour the farming operation and see the 57-head all registered herd from which Dale has sold 27 bulls in the last six years, seven to studs in the United States.

Hershey said that merchandising genetics makes up a large percentage of his operation and he also has been exporting heifers and selling embryoes.

He bought his startup herd from G. Hershey Hostetter, of Millwood, and Dale said he has three brood cows which are the focus of his efforts — cows from the Isabel family, Heather family and Jennifer family.

Currently he has heifers and calves representing four generations from those cows.

One of his cows in particular has been getting attention. His Mil Valli Belltone Hilda, and Very Good 86 is his top index cows and he exported 51 embryoes from her to Etazon Genetics, a Dutch company. She was featured in an advertisement in the 1994 Holstein World.

During her last lactation she produced 31,000 pounds of milk in 305 days.

While the Hersheys are in their sixth year dairying, they have worked at the rented 100-acre farm for the past three years.

Those familiar with Dale's operation may note that he previously had a 90-head milking string. He said that in order to reduce overhead costs, he eliminated hired help and cut the herd back during the last couple of months to keep it a family farm. He still has about 65 head of heifers produced from the herd when it was 90-head strong.

The current herd has been averaging about 23,000 pounds of milk, 776 pounds fat, and 730 pounds protein.

In addition to selling milk and genetics, the Hersheys also raise their bull calves under the Tend-R-Lean program and market those with the help of Pennfield Corp. Currently they have 41 head.

Dale does his own sire selection and he said he stresses index, and type and production. He said the herd has strong production, and he has been pushing type.

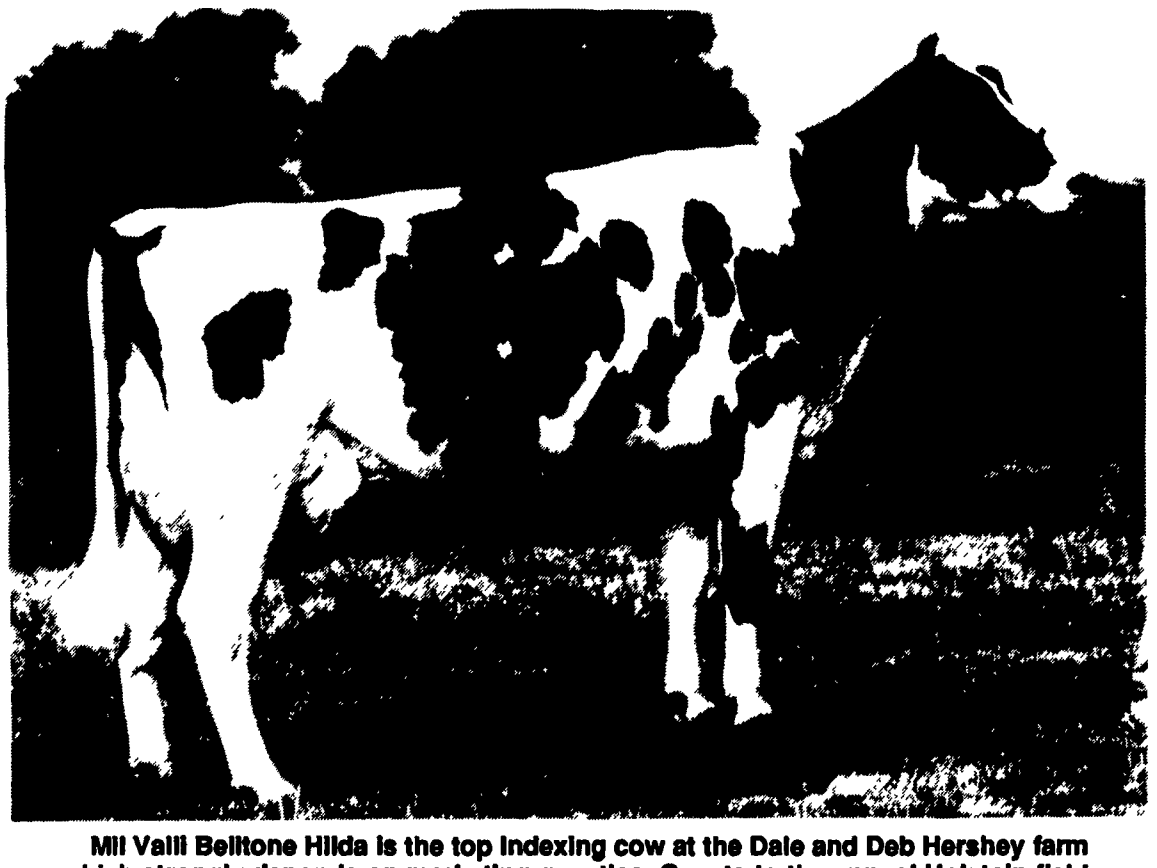
Dale has been involved with the Holstein Club for three years, serving as club treasurer for two years.

He also serves on the county Field Day Committee with Mike Eby, Kelvin Hatch, and Warren Good, and he said that he and Deb were glad to be able to open their farm for the annual event.

The Hersheys have three children, daughters Monica and Taylor, and infant son Regan.

To register contact Hershey at (717) 768-3508, or write to Dale R. Hershey, 416 Hershey Church Road, Kinzers, PA 17535.

Dale and Deb Hershey are inviting Lancaster Holstein enthusiasts to their rented dairy farm near Kinzers for the county club's annual field day on August 3. In front is daughter Monica while Dale holds daughter Taylor and Deb holds son Regan in front of their stone farm house.



Mil Valli Belltone Hilda is the top indexing cow at the Dale and Deb Hershey farm which strongly depends on marketing genetics. Guests to the annual Holstein field day can see Hilda and several other cows of genetic importance.

Flying Farmers To Land In Reading

READING (Berks Co.) — Flying Farmers from across North America will land here at the Sheraton Berkshire on July 18 as the International Flying Farmers' 51st Convention begins.

More than 300 members of the 50-year-old nonprofit association are expected to attend the international event, including members from United States and Canada. They will come together to reaffirm their commitment to safety and education in the general aviation and agriculture industries.

"Since the beginning of our organization, Flying Farmers has been dedicated to education, safety and the protection of members' farming and flying interests," said Wayne Steel, IFF president.

IFF began when Herb Graham, Oklahoma A & M College's Agricultural Extension Director, took his idea to Oklahoma A & M's president, Dr. Henry G. Bennett. Bennett not only liked the plan of an organization of flying farmers, but he also envisioned the possibility of a national organization headquartered in Stillwater on the A & M campus. The invitations were sent and the first meeting took place Aug. 3, 1944.

Today, Oklahoma A & M is now Oklahoma State University and the Flying Farmers' headquarters are in Wichita, but the dream came true and even surpassed. The organization, now international in scope, encompasses thousands of members from all over the world.

Not only are farmers who fly encouraged to join but anyone who has the desire to find a family-oriented organization that supports private pilots. Flying Farmers are people of all ages and occupations, from retirees to grade-school children and doctors to professional pilots.

"We expand our members' horizons through seminars and speakers as well as through tours and meetings across the United States, Canada, and beyond," said Steele.

"However, the biggest asset to our organization is our members and our ability to involve the whole family in chapter, regional, and international events."

PASTURE DRY MATTER INTAKE — SHOULD YOU MEASURE IT?

Lisa Holden
Penn State University

There is no question that in any grazing system with any species of animal, the amount of total dry matter that animal consumes each day will have a large impact on performance.

Dry matter intake (DMI) drives gain in growing animals and milk yield in lactating animals. Without adequate DMI, animals can lose body condition, grow at less than optimal rates, and cost you more to keep and maintain than well fed animals.

Total DMI in all types of feeding systems varies with the size, age and nutrient requirements of the animal, environmental conditions (temperature, humidity, etc.), and amount, type, palatability, and availability of feed. Grazing systems can introduce more variation in DMI because of changes in pasture availability and different rates of substitution of pasture for other feeds. It is easy to see how much feed is left in a bunk and if cows can reach the feed, it is not always so easy (especially for a less experienced grazier) to determine how much available feed there is in a particular paddock.

There is no question that both total and pasture DMI can vary and that DMI is important for animal performance. But should you measure how much DM animals consume for your particular grazing system?

In New Zealand, producers routinely estimate pasture cover (indirectly they are estimating DMI) and use that information for feed budgeting. Dairy nutritionists estimate DMI from pasture and use that information for ration formulation. Periodically on Graze-L (see note below), the discussion of estimating pasture DMI comes up and ideas are offered by producers, scientists, and others. Some producers have shared their ideas about estimating pasture DMI.

Estimating pasture DMI can be done in a "quick and dirty" way or can be done more accurately if you want to take the time. Estimating pasture DMI means gauging how much dry matter is in a paddock before and after cows graze. Amount before, minus amount after, divided by number of cows, is DMI per cow. There is roughly about 300 pounds of DM per acre in each inch of standing forage (Note: This is a very rough estimate.) So, for an acre paddock with 6 inches of pasture that 50 cows graze for a day and leave at 3 inches: (6 inches x 300 pounds/inch = 1800 pounds - (3 inches x 300 pounds/inch = 900 pounds.)

Therefore, 1,800 pounds DM available - 900 pounds DM residual = 900 pounds DMI/50 cows = 18 pounds DM/cow/day. You can make the height measurements with a yardstick or estimate on your boot as you are walking.

There are also other more accurate ways of estimating herbage in a paddock. Electronic probes are available, and less expensive rising plate meters can be purchased or made at home. It is important that these devices be calibrated by cutting, drying and weighing herbage, to be accurate for your geographic area. Estimates of pasture DMI will likely not ever be as accurate as using a set of scales and before and after weights on feed, it is possible to obtain relatively reliable estimates — if you are willing to take the time.

There is no question that there are relatively accurate ways to estimate pasture DMI, but should you measure how much DM animals consume for your particular grazing system?

Estimating and recording pasture DMI for your grazing system will provide information for making decisions — when to move animals, when to provide supplement, etc. Estimating DMI on a particular paddock provides information about both plants and animals in the system.

Good grazing management requires managing both plants and animals together. Changes in pasture availability, signaled by changes in DMI, will occur with season and with changes in weather.

Short-term grazing decisions must be made daily and weekly, either with information or simply "by eye." Having estimates of pasture DMI can be useful in making grazing management decisions, even for the experienced eye.

Collecting farm data (animal and crop production, financial, etc.) either yourself or by hiring others for their services is part of managing a farm business. Some data is collected because it is needed by someone off the farm, and some is collected because it is important. Written records can help to manage the day-to-day operation of the farm as well as to help the manager make long-term decisions.

Estimating pasture DMI is collecting data. Is that data important? Yes. Can you collect that data easily? Yes. Do you need to collect that data? Only if you will use it.

If developing a routine to make and record estimates of pasture DMI will help you to make better grazing management decisions, then the time to make those estimates is well spent.

Dairy Board Seats New Members, Elects Officers

Elects Noss Vice Chairman

ROSEMONT, Ill. — The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board (NDB) seated 10 new members and elected new officers at its annual meeting May 24.

The following board members were elected NDB officers: Robert Gaebe, New Salem, N.D., chairman; David Noss, Port Royal, Pa., vice chairman; Alice Moore, Frazeyburg, Ohio, secretary; and Myron Schmidt, Newton, Kans., treasurer.

Ten new board members were appointed to their first three-year terms by the U.S. secretary of agriculture; Elizabeth Anderson, Onalaska, Wash.; George Gambonini, Petaluma, Calif.; Vernal Gomes, Tulare, Calif.; Beatrice Moons, Chino, Calif.; Gregory Blaska, Marshall, Wis.; John (Jack) Christensen, Ringle, Wis.; Louis Smith, Fremont, Ohio; Charles Deputy, Harrisonburg, Va.; David Weitzer, Poolesville, Md.; and Jane Gillette, Turin, N.Y.

Two incumbent board members were reappointed to their second three-year terms: Myron Schmidt, Newton, Kans.; and Maynard Lang, Brooklyn, Iowa.

"On behalf of the new officers and board members, I want to stress that we are encouraged that milk sales are up and that this industry is working together better than we've ever seen it," said Bob Gaebe, incoming board chairman.

"Marketing with one voice is our best chance to keep sales moving in the right direction."

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board is composed of 36 dairy farmers representing 13 regions of the contiguous United States. Through Dairy Management Inc., the staff and management formed by NDB and United Dairy Industry Association, NDB administers a coordinated program of promotion, research and nutrition education on behalf of America's dairy farmers.

Soybean Producers Poll Set For July 26

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Soybean producers who want to keep national soybean checkoff refunds available are reminded of an important poll taking place July 26 at their county Consolidated Farm Service Agency (CFSA) office.

The poll will decide whether a referendum should be held on continuing refunds for the soybean checkoff. Under the checkoff, farmers contribute 50 cents for every $100 worth of soybeans they sell. The funds go for research, market development and education programs. If at least 20 percent of eligible producers nationwide vote in the July 26 poll, a refund referendum will be held within a year. If the poll shows that less than 20 percent of producers support a refund referendum, a referendum will not be scheduled and soybean refunds will automatically be terminated.

Only producers who want to see a refund referendum take place are asked to participate in the poll at CFSA offices on July 26. Absentee ballots can be requested by mail or in person — but not over the telephone — and must be returned, postmarked no later than July 14 to the local CFSA office. No more than one-fifth of the total voting for a refund referendum will be counted from any single state.

The policy of the American Farm Bureau Federation, which includes the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB), supports providing refund opportunities in all commodity promotion programs, including the Soybean Promotion Research and Consumer Information Program.

"One way to think of the upcoming poll is as a petition drive to see if a referendum should be held," said PFB president Keith Eckel, "If not enough soybean growers support the petition by voting in the poll, the refunds will end. So if you want to keep the option of receiving a checkoff refund available, be sure to go to your CFSA office on July 26."

Soybean growers who certify that they produced soybeans between Sept. 1, 1991 and June 1, 1995, are elligible to vote in the poll. A total of 381,000 producers nationwide are eligible. If fewer than 76,200 growers — 20 percent of the total eligible — take part in the July 26 poll, the checkoff refund will be discontinued immediately.

Farmers Appeal Lancaster Reassessment Values

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Six Lancaster County landowners firmly believe that the county's reassessment values are too high, and they're doing something about it.

Early in June, the farmers met at the farm of county Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) president Jane Balmer to file a class action appeal with the county's reassessment board.

The appeal lawsuit claims the county's Clean and Green value, set at $1,220 per acre, is too high and must be corrected to more accurately reflect the actual value of cropland.

Also, the first-acre assessment figure at $40,000 is also unreasonable, according to group spokesperson Earl Newcomer, county PFB membership chairman.

The farmers who filed the class action appeal include:

- Jane Balmer, county PFB president, Mount Joy. Balmer manages layers and grows about 100 acres of various crops.
- Earl Newcomer, Manor Township. Earl grows 80 acres of various grains and tobacco.
- John and Abe Barley, Star Rock Farms, Conestoga. This diversified farm operation encompasses about 3,000 acres.
- Harold G. Rohrer, Lampeter. This farm includes 140 acres of general crops and a 50,000 layer operation.
- Robert K. Rohrer, Quarryville. This operation measures 77 acres.
- David L. Neff, Central Manor. This 350-sow hog operation measures about 42 acres.

The Clean and Green value "is too high for what we can grow" on the land, said Newcomer. He said that farmers who rent land for crops would have to charge at least $120 per acre, unreasonable in light of depressed corn prices, to make up for the high figure.

"You don't always get a good year for corn," said the spokesman.

In addition, corn must be rotated with other crops regularly to ensure good yields under a conservation program. As a result, "a crop like hay is less profitable than corn," he said.

Also, using cash corn value as a scale is also unreasonable, considering that other crops such as wheat, hay, barley, or oats also fall victim to depressed prices.

"A lot of farmers are dissatisfied with the Clean and Green program," he said. "People are still suspicious."

Also, the first-acre figure of $40,000 is "terribly unreasonable," said Newcomer.

Jane Balmer, county PFB president, said that more farmers should "get involved." The group was told that the hearing before the board is scheduled next month.

As a result of an appeal to extend the Clean and Green deadline, farmers have until Sept. 1 this year to sign up for the program.

If successful, according to Balmer, the county's Clean and Green figures will be lowered to more accurately reflect crop values.

"It's benefitting every landowner," said Balmer. "Whatever results we get out of it will help everybody."

For more information, contact Balmer at the farm bureau, (717) 653-5916.

To Host Field Day

GROVE CITY (Mercer Co.) — On July 15, Haven Woods Farms, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association and the Pennsylvania Simmental Association, will host a cattlemen's Field Day and Junior Show At Haven Woods main farm complex located at 1919 Hendersonville Rd. just north of Grove City.

Haven Woods Farms, established in 1990 by owner Bob McQuiston, is a modern Simmental breeding operation incorporating many innovative farming trends.

With a herd of 124 Simmental cattle, a new prefabricated metal barn and machine shed designed by Flexospan Inc., and a modern stall system to look over, this field day should be interesting and informative to all cattlemen.

Approximately 40 percent of Haven Woods cattle are produced from embryo transplant. Visitors will have an opportunity to observe an embryo transplant demonstration, and inspect calves born from transplanted embryos.

Haven Woods buys selective simmental embryo donor cows and heifers from as far away as the Midwest, bringing new and improved bloodlines to Pennsylvania's simmental herd.

Owner Bob McQuiston will also host a junior show and will offer demonstrations of baleage wrapping, show grooming, and a nutrition seminar. Food and refreshments will be available.

To enter the junior show, contact Haven Woods Farms at (814) 786-9562 or Barbara Carlisle at (412) 948-3742.

Understanding Animal Behavior Helps Prevent Injury

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—As spring and summer approach, farm animals are likely to be handled and transported more often. A basic understanding of animal behavior can help producers handle livestock more safely.

"Large animals tend to cooperate better when they're handled with knowledge and skill," said Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering and farm safety specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "It's important to know how animals perceive and react to the world around them."

Many Pennsylvanians are injured each year because of a lack of safety awareness around animals. Accidents also occur because of haste, impatience, anger or not paying attention. While most of these accidents are not fatal, they often result in broken bones, crushed and mashed limbs, missed work days and needless medical costs.

Understanding cattle behavior is critical for anyone who moves, handles or loads cattle. "Animal scientists point to two very important concepts—the flight zone and the point of balance," Murphy said.

The flight zone is the space surrounding an animal or group of animals. "If you enter an animal's flight zone, it will move away until it feels safe," Murphy said. "If you stop or retreat from the flight zone, the animal usually stops moving away."

The size of an animal's flight zone varies with the type of animal, the angle and speed of the handler's approach, the animal's familiarity with the handler, whether the animal sees or hears the person approaching, whether the animal is wild or tame, and the animal's recent experiences.

An animal's point of balance is related to its flight zone. The shoulder is the point of balance for most cattle. "If you approach in front of the point of balance, the animal moves backward," Murphy said. "Approaching from behind the point makes the animal move forward."

Animal scientists offer the following animal handling tips:

•Beef and dairy cattle generally are color blind and have poor depth perception, making them extremely sensitive to contrasts. A shadow across a walkway may look like a deep hole to the animal, making it balk. This is why cattle often hesitate when passing through unfamiliar gates, barn doors, or chutes.

•Farm animals have difficulty moving from dark places to brightly lighted places, and vice versa. Give animals time to adjust from one light situation to another. Rushing them will cause them to balk.

•Cattle have good hearing and will try to move away from the source of unfamiliar or unpleasant noise. They are calmest when surrounded by familiar sounds.

•Animals draw on past experiences when reacting to a situation. An animal that has been chased, slapped, kicked, hit or otherwise mistreated will fear humans.

•Plan out the process of moving an animal before attempting it.

•To reduce risk, anyone who owns livestock should use a restraining chute.

Collegiate FFA Honors Instructor

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Collegiate FFA has honored Penn State Professor Erskine Cash with its Outstanding Educator Award in recognition of excellence in the areas of teaching and advising.

Cash joined Penn State's Dairy and Animal Science faculty in 1972, where his major emphasis is undergraduate teaching and advising. As coordinator of the department's beef cattle program, Cash uses current genetic principles and technologies to make selections and plan matings in the Penn State beef herds, and the Angus herd has gained national and international prominence under his direction.

Cash's expertise in beef cattle production and management has attracted students seeking careers in the livestock industry. He also developed a livestock merchandising course to acquaint students with the many facets of marketing top-quality seedstock. The culmination of this course is an annual student-run production sale featuring Penn State Angus cattle.

Both as former coordinator of advising for the undergraduate Animal Science major and as present coordinator of the department's external relations, Cash aids in the recruitment, advising, and placement of students. His interest in students — as evidenced by his service as editor, vice president, and president of the National Block and Bridle Club — is recognized nationally. In 1991 he received both the Penn State College of Agriculture Sciences Alumni Society's Excellence in Academic Advising Award and the Virginia Tech Block and Bridle Club Distinguished Honor Award.

Cash also has been recognized by his peers for his excellence in teaching, having received Penn State's AMOCO Foundation Outstanding Teaching Award in 1979 and the College of Agricultural Science's Gamma Sigma Delta Teaching Award in 1984.

Cash was graduated from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in 1969 with a bachelor's degree in animal science, and was awarded his doctorate in animal husbandry from Michigán State University in 1972. He is a member of the American Society of Animal Science and serves on its editorial board. In addition to being a member of numerous industry organizations, he serves as director to the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association and the Pennsylvania Angus Association and as an ex-officio member of the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

On The Farm With Lancaster County's Dairy Princess

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Heather Oberholtzer is the eighth generation to live on her family's farm.

"I love it," said Heather, who is Lancaster County's recently crowned dairy princess.

The family's 150-acre Elizabethtown dairy farm is home for Heather, her parents, Clair and Lavern, and siblings, Jesslyn, 19, twins Brent and Brian, 14, and Delmar, 12.

It's also home for 75 pampered cows.

"I always say that I'm a Equal Opportunity Employer," Clair said of the herd that has about two-thirds of the Holsteins registered. "If a grade milks good, she stays. I have one grade family that is as good as any registered one."

Perhaps there is a bit of prejudiced shown between the grade and registered cows. The grades are duped numbers while the registered cows are thoughtfully christened such names as Nancy, Tonya, or Hillary. There is also a cow family with names that carry on banking terminology such as Cash Flow, Credit, Loan, Master Charge, Visa, and Vault. Then there's the soap family line with names such as Dove, Dial, and Zest.

The children insist that the bovines often live up to their names. For example, Nancy and Tonya were at one time both amicable cows, but after the Tonya Harding and Nancy Kerrigan fiasco, Tonya the cow developed a nasty streak and consistently attempted to pin the siblings to the wall and buck them. Tonya the cow ended up as hamburger and beef jerky.

"She tastes as good as she looked," Brian said and the others agreed.

With a farm that dates back to 1718 and has several original buildings still standing, the Oberholtzers always have plenty of do-it-yourself projects.

Some of these projects have almost cost a life.

In 1981, Clair was jacking up the barn wall when a beam flew out and hit the side of his head.

"I technically died on the way to the hospital," Clair said.

The Life Support ambulance pulled to the side of the road to work on stabilizing his vital signs.

Clair was told that that after all his body systems shut down, his body revitalized itself and started up again.

"They said that it only happens occasionally to young, athletic people," Clair said.

As the recently-crowned Lancaster County Dairy Princess, Heather, right, relies upon her sister Jesslyn, who was a former county alternate, for hints on compiling a scrapbook of activities.

Three years later, Clair unexpectently suffered severe pain in his head that resulted in loss of hearing in one ear, which was diagnosed as a side effect of his former concussion. When he lost his hearing, he also lost his sense of balance for about six weeks and couldn't work.

During these episodes, Lavern capably carried out the milking duties. But she confessed that she needed to throw a whole tank of milk away when she unwittedly milked a dry cow.

Local farmers and friends rallied around the family.

"We never put hay away so fast," Clair said of the time neighboring farmers showed up with three hay balers.

As the children grow older, Laverne helps less in the barn and fields. In addition to working full time as a secretary for a hospital, Laverne tackled exposing the wooden chestnut logs in one room of the rambling farmhouse.

"It took me three winters, 50 gallons of elbow grease, and lots of filler," Laverne said.

The whole family helped with hauling out wheelbarrows of old plaster and debri. An offset grinder wire brush and bleach were used to clean the logs. Insulation was added to the plaster to make the room more heat efficient.

It was a lot of work. But the room now has the warmth of huge timber walls, a built-in corner cupboard, and two other built-in cupboards, and wide floor boards.

Laverne would like to tackle the rooms in the rest of the house, but it's expected to be a life-long project. Laverne said that the side of the double house that they live in has nine rooms, and the side where Clair's father, Samuel, lives has seven rooms.

The family has the sheepskin deed that shows that Penn's son sold about 400 acres to a Cook before it was purchased by an Oberholtzer. The farmland and the woodland were distributed to various family members in early generations of the Oberholtzer family. In the late 1960s, terraces and waterways were installed. But, much of the old-time charm of the sprawling farmsite was kept intact.

The children still remember when free-range chickens roamed in the yard.

"And we still have two working outhouses," Heather joked.

Clair was born in the farmhouse and when he married, he rented the farm until 1981 when he purchased it from his father.

In 1993 a new dairy barn was built and attached to the older barn. During renovations, the stone gabled end of the barn collapsed.

"It's a miracle that it didn't smash the milking equipment or hurt any cows," Clair said.

A vacuum line broke, a replacement pump was found, and the milking schedule progressed smoothly after that.

The collapse of the stone wall resulted in the wall being rebuilt with cement blocks, which allowed them to install windows for circulation.

The first day that the dairy barn was completed, it took three hours to coerce the cows to enter the stalls.

"They didn't want to step across the gutters and the cow mattresses," Clair said.

After a few days, the cows relaxed and the job went faster and smoother.

"I like stalls because I can watch the cows individually. You can tell when a cow is eating or not. You can give them more individual attention and the cows are tamer," Clair said.

Jesslyn said, "Before we couldn't keep them clean because we didn't have enough stalls. We switched half of them at night and the other half went to the manure pack. Now, it's much more convenient and the cows stay cleaner.

"Plus you can tell the cows are more comfortable," Clair said.

Ventilation fans are used to pull air through. Even in high temperatures, it feels comfortable in the barn because of the air flow, Clair said.

Clair stands in front of the new dairy barn that was attached to the older barn. During earlier renovations, an accident resulted in Clair "technically dying" before his body revitalized itself and started up again. During his recuperation, neighbors and friends helped with the farm work.

Heather, who will be a senior this fall at Elizabethtown High School, is FFA president for her chapter.

She plans to attend either Delaware Valley or Wilson College for pre-veterinary studies.

Heather and Jesslyn share a close friendship as sisters. Heather said that when Jesslyn became the county's alternate dairy princess two years ago, she made it a goal to become the county dairy princess.

The night after she was crowned, the family left her sleep in as they thought it only fitting for a princess. Otherwise, Heather and Jesslyn are expected to milk every Sunday morning and relief milking — a chore they both enjoy.

Being a dairy princess has its

Lancaster County's Dairy Princess

drawbacks when one has three brothers, Heather said. One day, the boys made iced tea. When Heather wanted some, they told her that dairy princesses are allowed only to drink milk or they will get that bone crippling disease.

A few days before Heather won the pageant crown, she won a top state FFA award and a trip to Kansas City (more about that later) and her dad purchased her a Buick Skylark.

"I really felt like a princess that week," Heather said.

During the week, the sisters both work for Gene Wenger's Meats. Their brothers and dad take care of the cows during the week. Twelve-year-old Delmar insists upon milking every morning. The family jokes that they need to remind him that, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

All the siblings belong to the 4-H Horse Club and Dairy Club.

"We are an old folks home for horses," Heather explained as she told of the family's legacy for inheriting three horses and a pony.

One of the horses was branded out West and rounded up by helicopter.

To this day, the horse is wary of noises and is distressed by helicopters and planes flying overhead.

The family's horses are also known to be the most dairy-educated horses in the county.

"Spunky knows everything about the dairy industry because Heather practiced her speech while walking him around the meadow," Brent said.

The family's pampered animals include Mustard, a St. Bernard mixed with a labrador retriever, and Marmaduke, a Great Dane. Both are considered part of the family.

Brent explained that he and his brothers joined the 4-H Dairy Club because Jess's calf made it to states the first year that she showed.

"But the rest of us haven't been that lucky," he said.

Heather quickly added, "But we have lots of added benefits from showing in 4-H, like friendships, learning responsibilty.,.

"And, mostly learning to lose," Brent said bluntly.

The whole family laughed and agreed with Brent's assessment.

"We always show our own homebreds so they can't go and buy the best," their dad said.

He considers it a great benefit that the children belong to the 4-H dairy club because they take an interest in cows and pedigrees, which benefits the breeding program.

Heather excels in public speaking. She credits participation in a 4-H Toastmaster's Club and FFA as helping her develop speaking skills. In 4-H competition, Heather advanced to state competition and in FFA, she made it to the state level two years in a row.

She has also placed first in state FFA ag sales, which resulted in her and her team winning an upcoming trip to the National FFA Convention held in Kansas.

At one point Laverne helped with milking and fieldwork, but she said, "I needed to get out of the way so the boys could learn to farm."

She now works full time as a secretary at a hospital.

The challenge in combining a career with mothering has been enjoyable for her. She said, "When I'm there, I'm there, and when I'm here, I'm here."

Because so many family members help in the barn, it is usually easy to adjust to someone needed off. This includes vacation excursions.

Last week, Heather and Jesslyn stayed home and milked the cows while their parents and brothers went to Hershey Park. Later in the week, the sisters went to the National Holstein Convention in Pittsburgh while the remaining family carried on the farming responsibilities.

At this point, all the children are interested in farming, so it's uncertain how the farm will be passed down through the family. But the siblings are adament that they intend to keep the farm within the family.

As dairy princess, Heather's newly assigned job within the family is to serve milk. That's an oft-repeated chore as the family enjoys drinking milk — especially chocolate milk.

A new record.

Our garden has set a new record.

The first ripe tomato arrived just ahead of the first day of summer. Appropriate, huh? And, it bested our former record of early July by a good two weeks.

Actually, the tomato was a shade on the greenish side. A day or two spent hanging around the bananas in the kitchen-counter fruit basket coaxed it to a lovely ripe color and more fully developed that classic home-grown tomato flavor. Yes, it was quite tasty.

This early-ripe-tomato record is attributable to various reasons, most of them relating little to the grower.

The seeds of this tomato, called "Enchantment," arrived here midsummer of last year, sent by a kindly reader who apparently shares a love of tomatoes. (Many thanks!) It's a plum-type, but grows slightly larger in size than the classic Italian plum variety often grown for simmering into thick, rich tomato paste.

Source of the seeds is a Maine company called Pinetree Garden Seeds, whose catalog followed sometime later. It's a homey, readable, catalog, filled with descriptions that sound more like a conversation between two die-hard gardeners than a sales publication. An order for some varieties of seeds I'd never seen anywhere else — along with some standard favorites — went back in the mail soon afterward.

By mid-April, the largest tomato seedlings were ready to move outside in our early, warm spring. Since frosts a month later are not unusual here, we rolled out this season's second experiment. Wall-O-Water insulating devices have been around for several years, but these were the first for our garden.

"No way," I thought the day I lugged out the double-walled plastic devices fashioned into tubular cells in which water is poured and began setting them up. A dozen gallons of water later — two gallons per trip back to the basement — four of the aqua-colored, teepee-shaped, mini-greenhouses stood erect over black plastic mulch. Six-inch-high tomato stalks snuggled down inside each of the water-filled structures.

"What are those?" was the question asked by everyone who saw or passed by the garden, as the Wall-O-Waters became an instant conversation starter. At least once each day, I'd mosey back to the garden and poke a hand down into one of the plastic forms, fascinated at how much warmer the atmosphere was inside the two-feet-high, water-filled shelters.

That lasted a couple of weeks, until the tomato stalks suddenly began poking thick stems out the tops. Another week, and they were beginning to look like jungle growth. How was I ever going to extricate the plastic covers from the tomato plants rapidly strangling them?

One sunny morning in mid-May, with infant, green tomatoes already dotting the stalks inside the pastic, it was apparent these things had to go before the baby fruits stewed. Squeezing the tubular cells between my hand, starting at the bottom, proved the best way to work the water out the open tops.

Until I got the hang of the technique, the sun-warmed water not only cascaded down onto the plants, but all over my arms, shoes, jeans and knees. When only a few inches of water remained in the bottom of each cell, the whole thing could be yanked off the plant and hung on the washlines to dry out for storage.

And, baby tomatoes ripened in record time.

The bell pepper experiment was another story. One pepper plant grown inside a fifth insulated shelter mushroomed in size and foliage, but set fruit very slowly. Meanwhile, the other unprotected ones, two-thirds the size, have been giving us good-sized, delicious peppers for a couple of weeks.

Go figure.

Moo-oo-ing for a milk shake? Southern Living editors found these terrific flavors when visiting ice cream shops in St. Louis: "All Shook Up" pairs peanut butter cookies and banana—Elvis's favorite snack—with vanilla ice cream; "Cardinal Sin" marries sour red cherries with fudge sauce and vanilla ice cream; while "Fox-treat" is a quartet of raspberries, fudge sauce, vanilla ice cream and macadamia nuts.

MILK. IT DOES A BODY GOOD.™

Blueberry Picking Time

July belongs to blueberries. Although shipped-in blueberries are available in larger supermarkets most of the year, it is now that consumers can count on those gorgeous blues in abundance.

While the blueberry season is too short for blueberry lovers, the good news is that blueberries are easy to freeze and can. Most recipes are interchangeable by using fresh or frozen blueberries.

BLUEBERRY JELL-O SALAD

2 3-ounce packages grape Jell-O
2 cups boiling water
20-ounce can crushed pineapple
1 can blueberry pie filling
Topping:
8-ounces cream cheese, softened
½ cup dairy sour cream
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Chill until syrupy. Add pineapple and pie filling. Pour into 12x8x2-inch dish. Chill until set. Topping: Heat ingredients except nuts. Stir until smooth and cream. Spread topping evenly over salad. Sprinkle with nuts.

¼ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 tablespoon lemon juice

2 tablespoons sugar

Combine sugar, tapioca, and spice. Mix with lemon juice and blueberries. Turn into a 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Dot with 1 tablespoon butter. Top with lattice crust. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with sugar. Cover edges with foil to prevent browning and bake at 425 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove foil. Bake 10 minutes more.

Featured Recipe

Most people think that pickled eggs are red, but yellow ones make a delightful addition to covered-dish meals or to your everyday dinners.

To make sure that the hard-cooked eggs are easy to peel, us eggs that are at least 7-10 days old. Follow these easy directions from the American Egg Board.

PICKLED EGGS

2 cups distilled or white wine vinegar
1 medium onion, sliced and separated into rings
2 tablespoon sugar
2 teaspoons whole mixed pickling spice
1 teaspoon salt, optional
2 teaspoons curry powder
12 hard-cooked eggs

In medium saucepan, combine all ingredients except eggs. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat to simmering. Cook, uncovered, over low heat until onion is tender.

Arrange 6 eggs each in two 1-quart jars with tight fitting lids. Pour one cup hot vinegar mixture into each jar. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight to blend flavors.

Plants Conditioned For Dry Shade

Farm woodlots often contain large trees, a canopy of smaller trees, a layer of shrubs and a rich forest floor of herbaceous plants. Why does this dry shade work in nature but not in the home garden?

First, the natural forest has had many years to build a layer of rich topsoil and humus from the decomposition of literally tons of leaves, plant parts and other organisms. A healthy forest is a combination of a variety of species that coexist in harmony.

In suburbia, we replant trees and shrubs into remaining subsoil, and select trees that survive in less desirable soils. Highly competitive trees, like Norway Maple, survive by having a shallow root system that sucks up all the surrounding soil, water, and leaves. These trees shade out competing plants. This condition is called dry shade. Here is a list of plants that survive in dry shade:

•Acanthus hungaricus is an architectural plant with long deeply cut leaves with mauve-pink flowers in June.

•Arum italicum "Pictum" has broad, spear-shaped leaves marbled with veins of grey that emerge in autumn, persist during the winter and disappear in summer. Stout 18-inch stalks support columns of glossy, orange-red berries that last through the summer.

•Carex buchananii has orange-red foliage for the entire year. It grows to a height of 2-3 feet.

•Corydalis ochroleuca is a dense, bushy plant that reaches 15 inches. It has evergreen, bluish-green leaves and pale yellow flowers from May until fall, followed by black, glossy seeds.

•Crambe maritima is an architectural plant that grows to 2 feet. It has large blue, almost silver leaves that are thick and toothed. Sprays of white flowers bloom in June.

•Deutzia gracilus 'Nikko' is a low-growing shrub (15 inches) with upright clusters of single white flowers in spring and wonderful burgundy foliage in fall.

•Dryopteris affinis crispa congesta is a delightful fern with tight, dwarf habit, reminding one of a condensed version of Chamaecyparis shrub.

•Epimedium cantabrigiense is an eight inch tall perennial with olive-green foliage and light yellow flowers with reddish margins.

•Epimedium grandiflorum "Lilafee" produces long-spurred lavender-violet flowers that rise through purplish new foliage in early spring.

•Epimedium youngianum 'Niveum' has small heart-shaped leaflets borne on a 10-inch wiry stem. Pure white flowers open in late April or early May.

•Equisetum scirpoides is often used as a bog or water garden plant, but it adapts well in dry shade. Evergreen 8-inch tall thin, jointed stems give it the appearance of bamboo.

•Fargesia nitida is a clump-forming bamboo with black stems, purple culms (joints) and soft evergreen foliage with an arching habit that reaches 8 feet.

•Geranium 'Biokovo' is a perennial with light pink, almost white flowers and excellent, shiny foliage that turns crimson in the fall.

•Helleborus argutifolius is a textural plant growing to 15 inches, with light green, almost grey leaves that are veined and coarsely toothed along the margins.

•Helleborus orientalis has blush white-to-plum flowers with crimson and maroon spots. Its evergreen foliage and ability to seed itself make it a wonderful groundcover.

•Heuchera 'Chocolate Veil' has large, bold, smooth leaves with patterns of purple and subtle overtones of silver.

•Heuchera 'Pewter Veil' is semi-evergreen with striking pewter-silver leaves and embossed black veins.

•Kirengeshoma palmata is an elegant plant reaching a height of three feet with large maple-like leaves and nodding stems of bell-shaped yellow flowers appearing in late summer to early fall.

•Polygonatum falcatum 'Variegatum' is a choice perennial boasting green leaves with creamy white margins and maroon stems.

•Rohdea japonica is a bold perennial with spear-like leaves and greenish-white flowers. It grows to 12 inches and forms axillary clusters at ground level.

•Waldsteinia ternata is a 6-inch perennial with dense, dark, evergreen foliage and yellow flowers.

ANSWER — Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, wanted a recipe for clear cranberry jelly that can be molded into shapes. Thanks to E. H. of King of Prussia for sending a recipe.

Cranberry Candy

1 can jellied cranberry sauce
1 cup sugar
3-ounce package lemon Jell-O
3-ounce package orange Jell-O

Bring all ingredients to a boil for 3 to 5 minutes. Remove from heat and allow to thicken slightly. Add 1 cup chopped nuts. Pour into buttered 8-inch square pan. When Jell-O is set and cooled, cut into shapes (pieces will be sticky) and roll in sugar. Let set on wax paper several hours. Roll again in sugar and let set several days until firm.

Red-colored Jell-O may be substituted for lemon and orange.

ANSWER — A Somerset reader wanted a recipe for rhubarb jelly. Thanks to Gladys Burkholder, Denver, for sending a recipe that she writes is easy to make and very good.

Cook rhubarb and sugar until soft. Remove from heat and stir in Jell-O until it is dissolved. Put into jars and freeze.

ANSWER — Edith Long wanted a recipe for blueberry dessert that uses grape Jell-O. Check "Home On The Range" on page B 6 for several answers.

ANSWER — Maryann Santini, Alpha, N.J., wanted a recipe to make sauerkraut in a five-gallon crock. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending a recipe.

Homemade Sauerkraut

Shred 5 pounds cabbage into an enameled pan, add three level tablespoons salt, mix well to distribute salt evenly, let set for 5 minutes to wilt and weep.

Place the crock where it can set for three weeks without being disturbed. Dump shredded and salted cabbage into the crock and stamp it down gently but firmly.

Firm packing is one of the secrets of excellent sauerkraut.

If the brine doesn't cover the cabbage, add more brine by boiling water, cooling it, and adding to each quart water and 1½ tablespoons kosher salt.

Cover crock with two heavyweight plastic food bags, one inside the other, filled with brine and tied shut. The filled double bag must fit snugly against the inside of the crock to exclude air and airborne invaders.

Fermentation will be completed in 3 to 6 weeks, depending on the temperature. At 75 degrees, it takes about 3 weeks, at 60 degrees, about six weeks. At temperatures higher than 75 degrees, the whole batch will probably spoil.

Once the fermentation is complete, the sauerkraut should be refrigerated. If you have a cold cellar where the temperature stays below 50 degrees, you can trundle the crock of kraut into it and use as needed, being careful to replace the plastic bag carefully.

Kraut may be packed into clean canning jars and processed in boiling water bath for 15 mintues.

Or, it may be placed in zip-top freezer bags and frozen.

½ cup lemon juice

Adjust lids and process immediately in a boiling-water canner for 30 minutes.

Looking for an entertaining idea? Versatile cheese trays are easy to create. As edible garnishes for the tray consider the following: apple and pear slices (brush cut surfaces lightly with lemon juice to prevent discoloration), red and green grapes, melon cubes, whole strawberries, sliced kiwi and starfruit, carrot sticks, bell pepper strips (red, green and yellow), cucumber slices, cherry tomatoes, olives (assorted) and jicama strips.

Try It. . .You May Like It

Do you remember the Life cereal commercials with Mikey? Remember the other kids bargaining about who will try something first? As I conduct workshops, I've found that many people are as resistant to trying something new as those kids were. But often, testing a new idea or product really pays.

One popular activity that I present in my money management workshops is a taste test. I purchase a selection of products and ask people to taste and rank their favorites. After the results are in, I share the information about prices. This makes a lasting impression on the group. For instance, most are surprised to find that it is very difficult to distinguish differences among saltine cracker brands, and yet some labels are half the price of others. Unless I had made the individuals try these products in a blind taste test, many would have continued to buy the name brand items. Why? They were sure they wouldn't like the less expensive brand. Now they report that they regularly buy and are pleased with store brand products.

Last week I practiced tasting a new product. I went to the store to pick up some bottled ice tea for a road trip. My favorite brand was only stocked in cans. After scanning the shelves carefully, I realized that one bottled brand was ⅓ the price of the rest. I had never heard of it before. What the heck! I bought three bottles to try.

This time the test brought a pleasant surprise. I like it, and I saved a lot of money. Of course, I could have saved more by brewing my own tea and putting it in a cooler. (That's the price I pay for convenience.) Now I have a less expensive product that I will purchase in the future. If I continue to experiment with no-name and store brand products, each time selecting the best one for the price, I save food dollars that can then be spent on other priority purchases.

It pays to try new things.

I saw this principle put into action last month when I visited my brother and sister-in-law. This time it was applied to parenting. My sister-in-law had read that if you lit candles at dinner, your preschoolers and school-age children were more likely to eat in a more relaxed manner. Her comments after trying it for a week, "You know, it really works!" And her five-year-old and two-year-old relish the opportunity to blow out the candles at the end of the meal.

Cooperative Extension publications are filled with suggestions. We continually encourage people to make positive changes by trying new things. Here are a few of them:

- Make a shopping list before going to the store or mall, and shop only from the list.
- Drink water.
- Walk or ride a bike instead of driving a car.
- Top waffles with fruit and yogurt instead of syrup.
- Maintain only one major credit card. If they charge an annual fee, call and ask them to waive the fee. If they are unwilling, switch to a company that charges no annual fee.
- Eat at least one meal a day with your children.
- Talk with your child about a newspaper or magazine article.
- Make puppets out of paper plates and popsicle sticks.

Each money-saving tip, discipline technique, family activity suggestion will not be a "winner" for every family, but many are. The point is, unless you test the suggestion, you'll never know.

I encourage you to take time this week to try out a new product or new idea. You may be surprised . . . the less expensive product may work as well, a smaller portion may satisfy your hunger, your kids may enjoy the opportunity to play cards with you some evening. You'll never know unless you try.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 1

Dorothea Boch was hostess at her Douglassville home for the May meeting of Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 1 with President Evelyn Heacock presiding at the meeting. Group 1 was organized 55 years ago on May 11, 1950.

Retired Amity Township Police Chief Maurice Eschbach spoke to the group of his experiences when serving as active police chief of Amity Township.

Eleven members represented Group 1 at the annual Spring Rally of Society of Farm Women of Pennsylvania which is held at Dickinson College in Carlisle. The rally, which had as its theme, "Sing and Smile and Pray on a Day in May," was most enjoyable.

DID YOU KNOW THAT...

Without your bones, you couldn't stand.
Wouldn't have much shape at all
Like a lump of clay, or a jelly fish
Or a flattened rubber ball!
So... "Bony Boy" and I are here to say,
You can have strong bones the easy way.
Exercise, go out and play
And drink your milk everyday!

THESE FUN RECIPES GIVE YOU LOTS OF CALCIUM AND ARE EASY TO MAKE.

MOO-JUICERS

1 cup milk
2 tablespoons creamy peanut butter
1 tablespoon strawberry jam
2 scoops vanilla ice cream or frozen yogurt

- In the container of an electric blender combine milk, peanut butter, jam and ice cream.
- Cover; whirl until smooth.
- Serve immediately.

YIELD: 2 cups • 2 portions

1 package (3 ounces) "berry blue" gelatin dessert mix
1/2 cup boiling water
1-1/2 cups milk

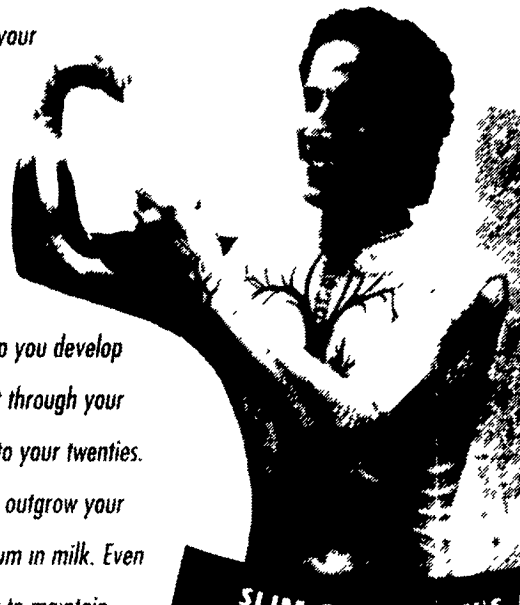
In a 1-cup glass measuring cup pour gelatin mix. Add boiling water; stir until gelatin is completely dissolved, 3 to 5 minutes. Pour into a medium mixing bowl; stir in milk.

Cover and refrigerate until nearly set, about 1 hour.

Using a wire whisk, rotary beater or an electric mixer set at low speed, beat gelatin mixture until it doubles in volume, 3 to 5 minutes.

Serve immediately or cover and refrigerate until ready to serve

Milk has lots of good nutrition to keep your body healthy. Its most important nutrient is calcium. The calcium in milk works hard to help you develop strong bones right through your teen years and into your twenties. In fact, you never outgrow your need for the calcium in milk. Even grown-ups need it to maintain strong bones and help prevent fractures and breaks.



SOUP-ER DOG

2 cups milk
1 can (16-1/2 ounces) cream-style corn
1 cup frozen peas and carrots, slightly thawed
2 hot dogs, sliced 1/4-inch thick

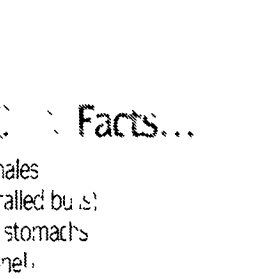
- In a medium saucepan combine milk, corn, peas and carrots and hot dogs.
- Bring to a boil, stirring frequently; reduce heat; simmer for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally.

YIELD: 4 cups • 4 portions

SLIM GOODBODY'S AMAZING BONE FACTS: 206 long, short, round, flat big and little bones make up your skeleton • Half the bones in your body are in your hands and feet • When you lift a glass of milk and take a sip over 30 joints move in your fingers, wrist, arm and shoulder • Joints are where bones meet • A baby may have as many as 350 bones, but as the child grows older many of these grow together and form single bones, especially in the skull

Incredible Cow Facts...

- All cows are females (The males are called bulls)
- Cows have four stomachs (You have just one!)
- Cows often have their ears pierced—with ID tags
- A cow can't give milk until she's given birth to a calf
- The average cow produces 90 glasses of milk each day That's enough for 30 children to have 3 glasses of milk a day
- Cows provide 90% of the world's milk. Water buffalo, camels, goats, sheep, horses, and reindeer are also milked.
- A cow weighs about 1400 pounds. That's probably 10–25 times what you weigh!
- A cow's udder can hold 25-50 pounds of milk. No wonder she's so eager to be milked!
- A Holstein's spots are like a fingerprint or snowflake No two cows have exactly the same pattern of spots.
- A cow gives nearly 200,000 glasses of milk in her lifetime



Orange Cow

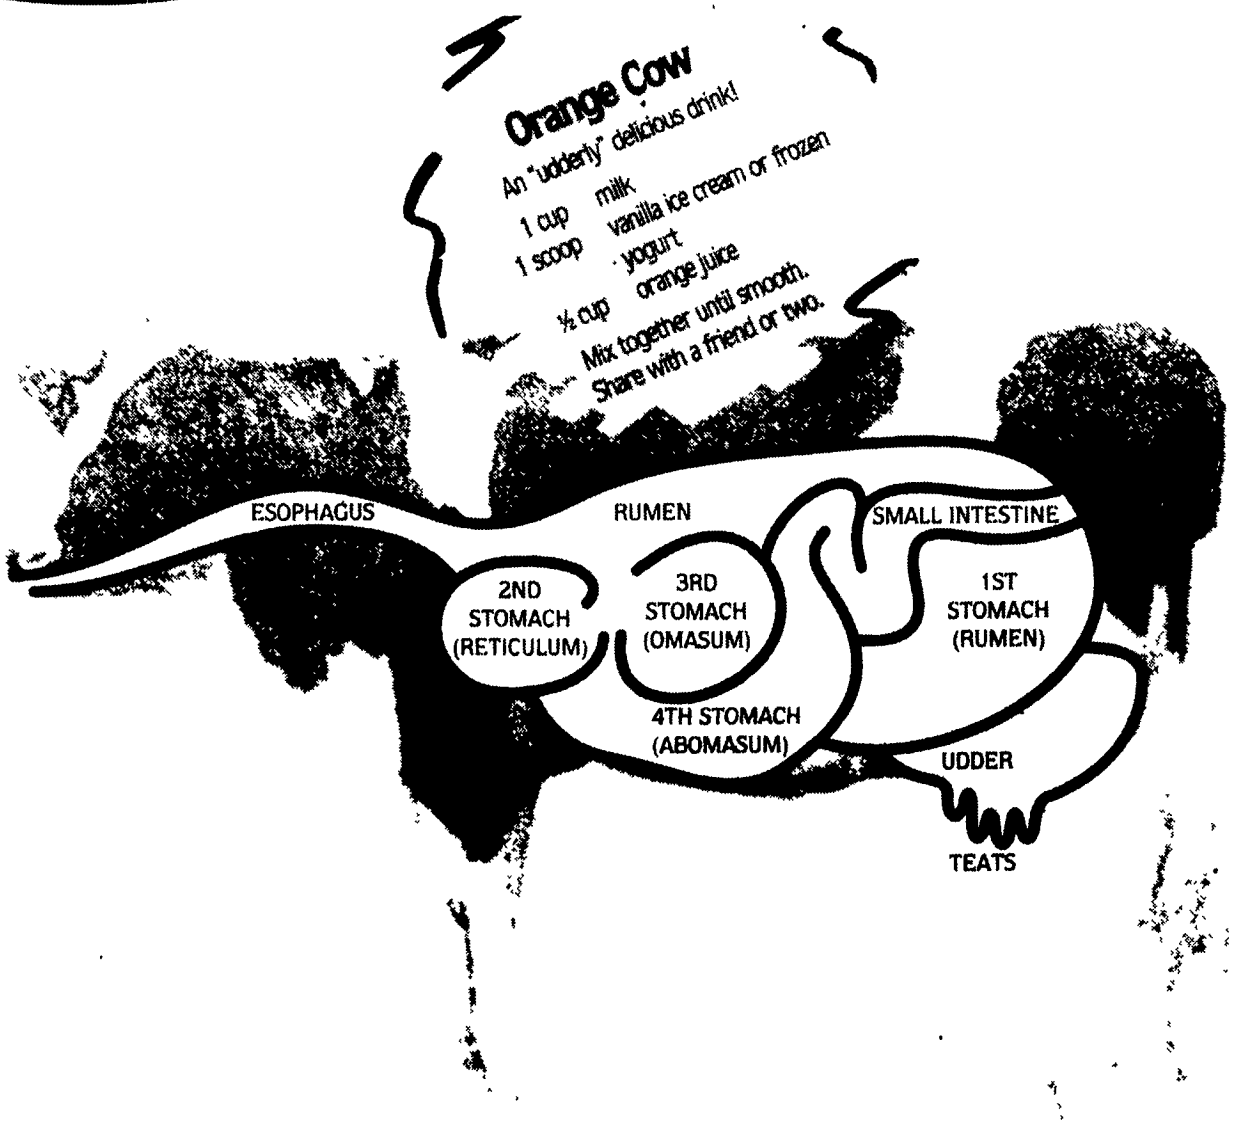
1 cup milk
1 scoop vanilla ice cream or frozen yogurt
½ cup orange juice

Mix together until smooth. Share with a friend or two.



Bedford's Dairy Princess Sets Goals

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

SAXTON (Bedford Co.) — With a good brain under a head full of bright red hair, the 1995 Bedford County Dairy Princess, Jennifer Brumbaugh of Saxton, RD 1, plans to be a veterinarian.

She's gotten a good start by helping her dad treat the nearly 80 head of cattle on their picture pretty 250-acre farm.

Crowned at a pageant held on June 10, at the Northern Bedford County High School, Jennifer is the daughter of Roger and Kathleen Brumbaugh. She is a senior at Tussey Mountain High School. She also owns her own small herd of dairy cattle.

Seven of the Brumbaugh cows belong to Jennifer. "My first was a Brown Swiss," Jennifer says. "She was a birthday present from my dad. She was also my show cow and I took a number of Reserve Junior Championships with her."

Jennifer now has four Brown Swiss, two red and whites, and one Holstein which she milks herself. She and her brother, Sam, 12, also help with other work on the farm including unloading hay.

Always busy, Jennifer is involved in Russian Club, SADD, the National Honor Society, and Oddessey of the Mind at school.

At the Stonerstown Church of the Brethren, she is active in the church youth group and does some substitute Sunday School teaching.

Her desire to be the Bedford County Dairy Princess is largely credited to Amy Mearkle, the 1993 Dairy Princess. "I was Dairy Maid that year and Amy had a great deal of influence on me," Jennifer says.

As the dairy princess she will be doing radio spots, new articles, school promotions, and will participate in at least 10 parades. She will also attend the state Dairy Princess pageant to be held in Harrisburg on September 23.

Her alternate is Nicole Over, daughter of Aldine and Derry Over of Woodbury.

Dairy Maids are Sandra Fluke, Saxton; Amanda Cessna, Everett; Crystal Heidorn, Everett; and Lynette Chamberlain, Clearville.

Centre County's Dairy Princess Begins Duties

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEFONTE (Centre Co.) — "She'll be able to do a good job. She's pretty much grown up with dairy cows. She'll be able to get that message across."

That vote of confidence for Centre County's Dairy princess comes from an important person close to her — her mother. Crowned Centre County's Dairy Princess at her May 25th coronation, Joleen Faye Martin of Bellefonte does have a message to tell about dairying and its healthful products. And she does it in several different ways — serving as dairy princess, helping a neighbor milk occasionally, working part time at Pappy's Place where they make homemade ice cream, and listening to the advice of another, more experienced Centre County Dairy Princess — State Alternate Rachel Tanis.

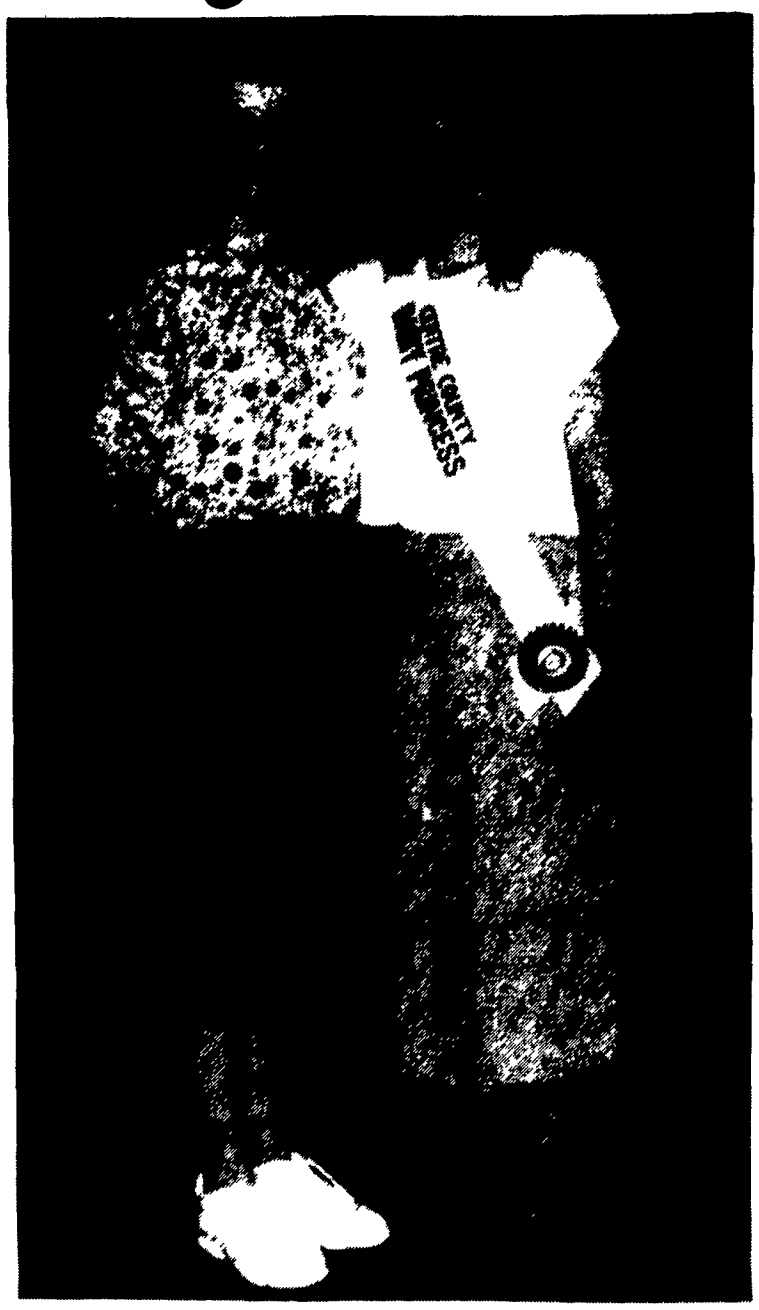
"I just hope to do as much as I can. My theme, I guess, is how hard it is to keep a family farm. That means a lot to me."

The daughter of Dave and Sara Martin, Joleen attended banquets with her family in the mid-'80s when her family dairy farmed. As a six- or seven-year-old then, she was impressed with the princesses. Two years ago, members of the Centre County Dairy Promotion committee called her, suggesting she run for dairy princess. Rachel Tanis also encouraged her. Now, Candace Wasson books events for Joleen while Sally Tanis serves as the chairperson of the committee.

"Rachel helps me a lot," Joleen says, adding that she hasn't had that much experience giving speeches. But with her family's encouragement and the Dairy Princess committee helping her, Joleen hopes to be able to accomplish as much as possible.

The Martin family moved to Centre County in 1984 from Danville. In 1986, her father bought a herd and rented a farm. In 1988, they bought the farm they currently live on and then sold the cows in 1993. Her father works as a nutritionist for Young's. Joleen milks at a neighbor's farm every Wednesday and when needed.

She said, "I work at Pappy's Place, too. They make ice cream in the back, just vanilla and chocolate so far. It's the real thing! It just opened last year and serves sundaes and milkshakes. I work three or four nights a week."



Centre County's Dairy Princess Joleen Martin joins her mother, Sara, on the deck of their Bellefonte farmhouse.

One of Joleen's first events as Dairy Princess was to welcome the first baby of June, which is dairy month. Joleen helped welcome Maureen Laurice Ochs by giving her proud parents a basket of baby gifts and dairy products. Joleen also helped two days with Special Olympics at Penn State.

Five Dairy Maids and three Dairy Misses join Joleen this year with her promotions. They are: Dairy Maids Latrisha Wasson, Christyn Rossman, Lori Connelly, Emily Cloninger, Laura Musser, and Dairy Misses Keri Connelly, Nicole Peterson, and Amanda Gates.

Anyone wishing to schedule Joleen should call (814) 237-2339.

Welcoming the first baby in June, Joleen presents a basket of baby gifts and dairy products to (left) Dr. Adrienne Ochs and Dr. Benedict Ochs of State College.

Raised Beds

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Are you still worried about using pressure treated wood for framing the raised bed for your vegetable, herb or flower garden? Here are some great options.

Stone frames will last forever, and you can easily rebuild the beds into any shape you want at any time.

Cement blocks or concrete is another option. If you lay the blocks in place so that the holes are facing up, you will be able to plant flowers and herbs in these pockets. You can also make a wooden form and pour permanent raised beds of concrete.

If wood is what you want, consider rot-resistant types such as cedar or redwood. Other types to consider are: hemlock, oak, black locust, red mulberry and catalpa.

Still another alternative is to use logs, lumber, and boards made of recycled plastic.

There are many advantages to using raised beds. For those of us who have trouble digging into the soil and rock to prepare a space, the raised bed is the answer. The placement of the top soil and amendments in the raised bed is just about the extent of the "work" that is needed.

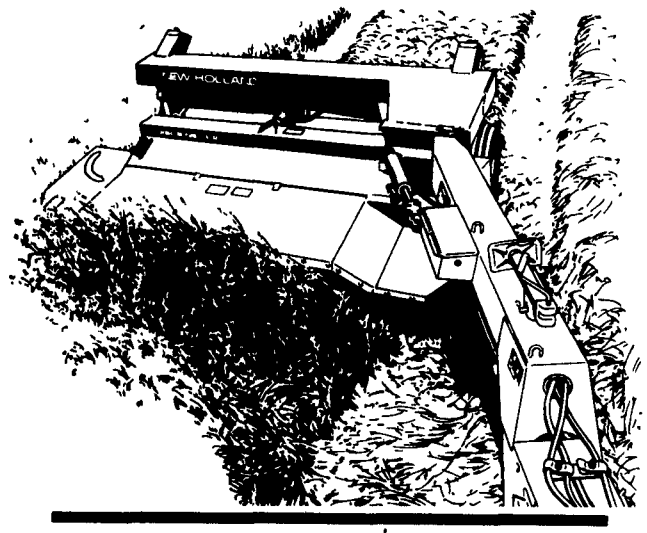
DISCBINE PERFORMANCE



ECONOMICAL FLAIL CONDITIONING

The Model 412 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner gives you a 9'9" cut and uses an economical flail conditioning system that scuffs plant stems for fast drying. And, the "412" has the responsive header flotation you've come to expect from a Discbine. See it for yourself.

BALE IT DRY OR WET

HAY OR SILAGE

You can make both with the Model 640 Silage Special. Here's how:

- The heavy-duty feeder has a position designed especially for silage baling.
- Steel-welded loops and a heavy-duty sharpened steel scraper on the sledge follower roll and tailgate nose roll eliminate crop residue buildup.
- Endless belts provide added durability in tough crops.

For dense, uniform 4' x 5' bales in dry or high-moisture crops, stop by and see the 640 Silage Special.

Repertoire Ready For Dairy Promotion

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

BELLEVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — Mifflin County's newest spokesperson for the dairy industry was chosen on Thursday, June 8, at St. John's Lutheran Church in Belleville.

Selected as 1995-1996 Mifflin County Dairy Princess after skit and speech presentations and impromptu questioning, Diane Yoder of McVeytown accepted the crown, sash, and responsibilities for promoting dairy products in this area.

The daughter of Gideon and Hazel Yoder, Diane competed against two others for the honors.

In her skit presentation, Diane took guests attending the competition on a journey into a cow's stomach and explained how milk is made. In her speech presentation, she emphasized how everyone in other occupations is able to function better because of the nutritional products farmers provide. She also read an essay entitled, "So God Made A Farmer."

Twenty-one years old, Diane Yoder graduated from Delaware Valley College with a degree in business administration and marketing. She served as Bucks/Montgomery County Dairy Princess in 1993-1994 and as one of Mifflin County's alternates in 1990. At Delaware Valley, she was a member of the National Agri-Marketing Association and was a Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives Scholar.

Selected as Mifflin County Dairy Princess alternates were Cynthia Yoder and Bridget Gearhart, both of McVeytown.

The daughter of Lee and Joanne Yoder, Cindy is active in the State Holstein Association, the judging team, church youth group, and is president of the county Dairy 4-H Club. A senior at Lewistown Area High School, Cindy emphasized teamwork in her speech presentation and portrayed Holly, one of the cows in the herd, for her skit presentation.

Bridget Gearhart is the daughter of Donald and Eilene Gearhart. A senior at Mount Union Area High School, Bridget is active in many school and 4-H activities, including drama club, county band, chorus, student council, and the Wayne 4-H Club. Bridget emphasized the importance of forming good dairy nutritional habits as a child for her speech, and explained the farm-to-store process as told by a milk truck driver.

The girls were joined on stage by Dairy Maids Natalie Byler, Megan Goss, April Goss, Laura Peachey, Rachel Sellers, Marlene Smith, and Michelle Yoder; and Dairy Misses Candace Glick, Stephanie Meinnert, and Bethany Wingert.

In her farewell speech, 1994 Dairy Princess Erin Goss thanked each member of the Dairy Princess committee for their help. Cheryl Glick, Deb Rheam, Judy Goss, Marlene Smoker, Sandy King, Jen Stuck, and Caryn Peachey stepped forward to receive a gift from Goss. She also recognized district coordinator Wanda Yoder and her own parents, Larry and Judy Goss of Lewistown.

Mifflin County Dairy Maids and Misses join 1994 Dairy Princess Erin Goss on stage during the 1995 pageant.

PA State Alternate Dairy Princess Rachel Tanis of State College said a few words and John Rheam served as emcee and auctioneer.

Diane Yoder will compete in the State Dairy Princess Pageant on September 23 in Harrisburg.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Bellwoood-Antis Receives Grant

Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius announced the Bellwood-Antis FFA of Bellwood has been awarded a $2,500 direct grant through the department's Agriculture and Rural Youth Organization Grant Program.

The grant will be used to sponsor 100 FFA members at the Western Pennsylvania Leadership Conference to be held July 27-28 at the University of Pittsburgh's Johnstown campus.

The objective of the conference is to develop agricultural leadership, cooperation, and citizenship in members at the conference. Activities will include small group workshops, public speaking, and organized recreation.

An evaluation will be given to all conference participants, and results will be shared with the planning committee for the upcoming conference. In addition to the survey, FFA chapter advisors will evaluate the motivational effect of the conference by observing attendees' participation in FFA events at the local, county, and state levels.

Under the Agriculture and Rural Youth Organization Grant Program, youth organizations such as 4-H and FFA apply for direct grants of up to $2,500 and matching grants of up to $15,000.

Southeastern Region Selects Fashion Revue Winners

READING (Berks Co.)— Seventy-two youth from seven southeast counties participated in the 4-H Fashion Revue at the Inn at Reading on June 27.

The purpose of 4-H Fashion Revue is to:

- Build self-confidence and poise
- Develop skills in planning, selecting and making clothing for different occasions
- Select appropriate accessories
- Develop good posture, grooming and punctuality habits
- Complete applications clearly and submit them on time
- Acquire knowledge and skills in planning, presenting and participating in fashion revues

Since community service is an important part of 4-H, the 4-H'ers used their sewing skills to make shoestring tote bags. They also filled the bags with tablets and Crayola crayons donated by Benney and Smith Co. Representatives Kay Meitrott and Barbara Meitrott from the Salvation Army of Reading accepted the totes for use at the Family Service Center for homeless children.

Other workshops which the 4-H'ers attended included modeling and judging. For judging, the participants were divided into junior (ages 8-12) and senior (ages 13-18) divisions. The senior winners have the opportunity to attend Pennsylvania State 4-H Fashion Revue at University Park on July 26. A fashion show open to the public was presented followed by presentation of awards. The winners were as follows:

Senior winners eligible to go to PA 4-H Fashion Revue include Richard Folk, Berks County; Melissa Kohler, Berks County; Amy Lichtenwalner, Lehigh County; Rebekah Moyer, Montgomery County; Laura Peiffer, Schuylkill County; Karina Price, Montgomery County; Dustin Putt, Berks County; Karen Savage, Berks County; and Stephanie Wojszwillo, Berks County.

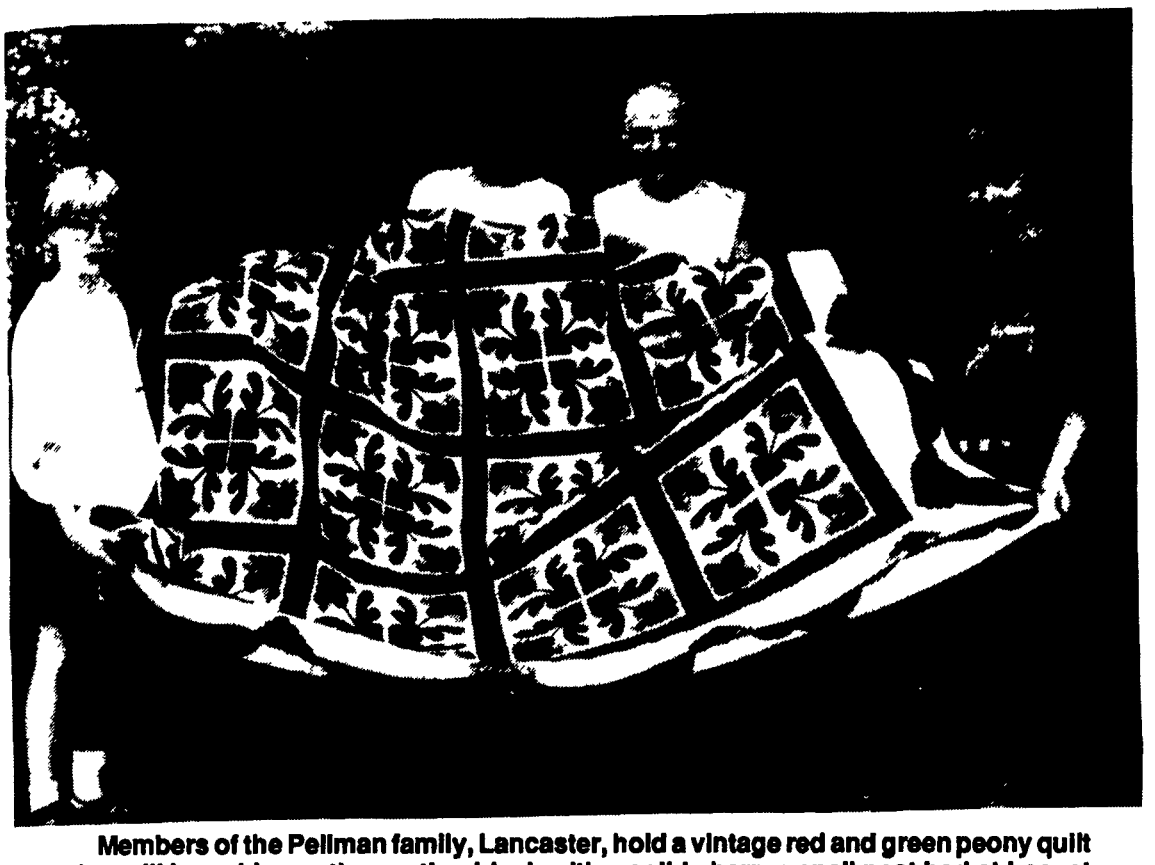
Locust Grove Benefit Auction Offers Plenty For Farmers



Members of the Pellman family, Lancaster, hold a vintage red and green peony quilt that will be sold over the auction block with a solid cherry pencil post bed at Locust Grove Mennonite School's 21st annual chicken barbecue and country auction, July 14-15. Rachel Thomas Pellman, middle, created the original applique design for the spread that was quilted by her mother, Edith Thomas, standing beside her. Jesse Pellman, left, and his brother Nathaniel are students at Locust Grove.

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.)—Locust Grove Mennonite School will hold its 21st annual Chicken Barbecue and Country Auction on Friday and Saturday, July 14-15. The barbecue takes place Friday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. while the auction begins at 8 a.m. Saturday and continues throughout the morning and afternoon. A silent auction will also be held Friday at 6 p.m. The proceeds will benefit Locust Grove.

A highlight this year will be the auctioning of top-quality bull semen and technician service donated by Belmont Breeders, Intercourse. The bull, Weaverline Energy, was sired by To-Mar Blackstar. The Dam was Den-Vic Valiant, a Gold Medal Dam and Dam of Merit. Energy is ranked among the top 10 Blackstar sons per second consecutive summary, one of only two Blackstar sons to earn this ranking. His TPI of +1274 ranks him number seven on the Holstein Association's current High Ranking, Low Reliability Bulls list. This five-unit package will include technician service in Lancaster and Chester counties.

Other featured items include a truckload (approximately one ton) of high-quality grass hay with free delivery on July 15 within a 20-mile radius of Locust Grove; a pickup load of split wood, also with free delivery; a new John Deere pedal riding tractor; and a 6" Foley Bell saw edger/planer.

Additionally, the auction will include the sale of art, quilts, crafts, Winross trucks, homemade food, and lawn, garden, and household goods. Of special interest is a hand-crafted pencil post bed built by Tim Horst, manager of the Old Road Furniture Company, Intercourse, which will be sold with a red and green Peony Quilt designed by Rachel Thomas Pellman, recognized nationally for her exceptional quilt designs.

Certificates will be sold Saturday afternoon for vacations, dinners, hunting trips, lodging, day trips, entertainment, IBM compatible computer training, a week of backyard Vacation Bible School for a family or small group of children, and many other special services.

The art auction will begin at 12:00 noon Saturday. Many well-known artists have contributed limited edition prints for this event, including Richard Bollinger, Myrtle Tremblay, Jim Daley, Julia Swartz, and Andy Smith. The art will be on display in a gallery at Locust Grove Friday, July 14, from 2 until 8 p.m. and again Saturday morning, July 15, until noon.

The items and services are donated by hundreds of businesses, churches, and individuals on behalf of the school. The goal for this year's Country Auction is to raise $60,000.

Many foods will be available throughout the day Saturday, beginning with an Early-Bird Country Breakfast from 7 to 9 a.m. Subs, sausage sandwiches, lemonade, hamburgers, hot dogs, fresh fruit cups, a salad bar, hand-dipped ice cream, and a wide array of baked goods can also be purchased all day.

Children can participate in a Children's Fun Festival Friday from 4 to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Activities will include an obstacle course, face painting, a moonwalk, crafts, movies, apple bobbing, and numerous games.

Locust Grove is located on the Old Philadelphia Pike (Route 340), approximately one mile from the Route 30 by-pass. For more information please call the school office at (717) 394-7107.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Summertime! A time for vacations and visits from grandchildren. It surely makes a difference in the activities we do depending on the ages. Six- and 10-year-olds can entertain themselves and do not need the attention that a four-year-old does.

On Sunday afternoon there were four boys and two fathers. They played baseball and then football. It surely made them hungry. In the evening they caught some fire-flies and hoped they would light their bedroom — but they still needed a night-light.

This year we have our old black raspberry bed and also a new planting. And, Allen has been picking quite a few. It looks as though he will have a lot of elderberries too. My sister took some blossoms to make a drink from a recipe that she got when she was in Europe.. And, we had a friend who often raved about the delicious taste of their big blossoms when dipped in pancake batter and so we'll try that too.

Our yellow raspberries do not give much fruit. Maybe because I don't weed them enough. However, they are very sweet. The red raspberries are almost ever-bearing as we can expect another crop this fall.

Whenever we have the opportunity , we always send some of our garden produce to our children in other states.

Why do we grow more than we need?

Maybe because we like to work outdoors. Maybe because we like to share with our children and grandchildren.

This year two ministers from our church got some of our 100 some quarts of strawberries. The rest we sold or froze.

QUESTION — Kay McGrath, 68 Hunter St., Tamaqua, Pa., writes that she found an antique in the attic of a deceased relative. She believes it is a spinning wheel loom. She has a picture of it if someone collects such objects.

QUESTION — Paul Early, R.R. 1, Box 632A, Annville, Pa. 17008 has a hopper to a wheelbarrow grass seeder that was made in the 1920s. He would like to hear from someone who has the wheelbarrow part or he would be willing to sell the hopper.

QUESTION — Ruth Dundore would like the book with the following poems: Brier Rose, The Old Man Goes To School, The Station Agent's Store, and The Last Hymn. It was published about 1900.

QUESTION — Maxine Tutton, Fort Royal, Va., would like the address for a mail order company that sells patterns for clothing that fits cement lawn geese that are so popular now.

QUESTION — George Rousis, Bally, hopes to move to the Midwest or Montana in a few years. He'd like to know how to find out weather temperature highs and lows, rainfall, and snowfall for the individual states during the past 10 years.

QUESTION — Jenny Palovitch of Lancaster County would like to purchase a wrought iron bench that wraps around a tree. It may be new or used.

QUESTION — A Lehighton reader would like to know the market price. for goose and duck eggs.

ANSWER — Eva Eby, Manheim, wanted to know how to get clematis vines to bloom. Thanks to Peg Koser, Strasburg, who writes that clematis like full sun but the roots should be in moist, cool soil. A large stone placed over the root area will do the trick. Also, add a little lime to the soil.

Marvin Bucher also wrote that if you water and fertilize clematis vines too much, you will get all foliage and not flowers.

ANSWER — Lois Burkholder, Washington Boro, wanted to know why her iris does not bloom. Thanks to Peg Koser, Lancaster, who writes that the biggest problem is that people often plant iris too deep in the soil. Iris will adapt to different soil situations but when planted in the shade, iris are at their best. Iris should be transplanted every 3-4 years as the rhizames become too thick. They like lime occasionally or bone meal. Don't plant too deeply because they like sun on the rhizames to ripen them. Cut back to six-inches in the autumn

Service Sires in use: Trident, Bonanza, Solder, Lot, Comet, Royal, Seth-Red, Escort-Red.
Over the past few years Ben and Kathy have had success in showing many of these animals on the local, state, and national levels. Many of these animals would make great 4-H or FFA projects for next year. Cows have been fed a simple ration of hay and grain, haven't been pushed for production. These cows will go on and do a good job for their new owners.
NOTE: A change in off the farm job positions is the only reason for this sale.
THIS HERD IS ACCREDITED AND CERTIFIED. ALL CATTLE HAVE HAD IBR, P13, LEPTO, & BVD. TESTED FOR INTERSTATE SHIPMENT. TRUCKING AVAILABLE.

July Pasture Walk Set

FREDERICK, Md. — The July Pasture Walk for Frederick County, Maryland will be held on Friday, July 28, from 10 a.m. until noon. Steve and Ruth Ann Derrenbacher will be hosting the event at Heirland Farm.

The Derrenbachers are grazing 140 yearling Holstein heifers under contract with a county dairy farmer. In addition to the permanent pastures consisting of fescue, orchardgrass, bluegrass, and clovers, they have also planted grazing maize for late summer grazing and are in the process of establishing switchgrass and bluestem as warm season grasses.

The purpose of the Pasture Walk is to allow livestock producers a chance to learn more about the use of rotational grazing as a way to increase agricultural profitability. Most of the time will be spent walking through the pastures discussing plant growth, fencing, watering systems, and animal performance.

Heirland Farm is located between Woodsboro and Union Bridge at 11021 Renner Road. From Route 75 (Green Valley Road) in Johnsville, go 1.6 miles on Renner Road to farm on the right.

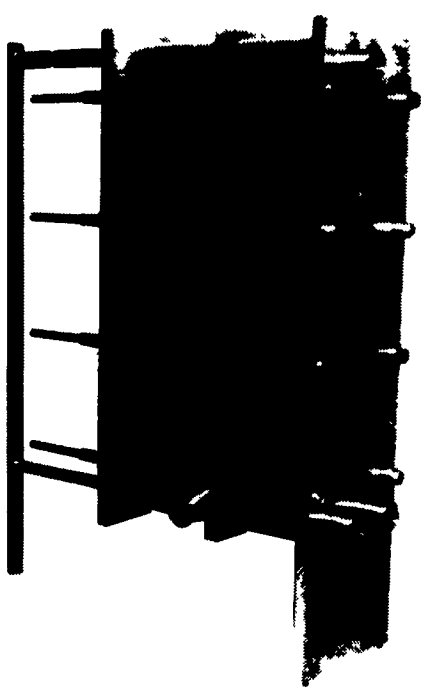
Cool is more than just a state of mind...

...It means quality milk.



Being cool is more than just an attitude or a state of mind. It's a necessity, especially when it comes to quality milk. The Surge Plate Kooler redefines cool. By using well water alone or combined with ice water, the Plate Kooler provides instant milk cooling.

Features and Benefits:

- ❑ Quick cooling reduces the risk of bacteria growth, resulting in higher quality milk and higher profits
- ❑ Pre-cooled milk means the milk tanks use less horsepower to cool milk, reducing energy costs.

Adding a Kool Way Chiller to your pre- cooling system increases your benefits by:

- ❑ Using 20 to 30 percent less horsepower to lower milk temperature to as low as 36° F, further lowering energy costs.
- ❑ Virtually eliminating tank cooling by using chilled water, instantly lowering milk's temperature to storage temperat

The Plate Kooler is individually sized. The "one size fits all" philosophy is no longer cool.

Mile-A-Minute Weed Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — It's known as mile-a-minute weed, tearthumb, or, scientifically, Polygonum perfoliatum. It can produce vines up to 25 feet long in a season, and it smothers shrubs, native plants, and tree seedlings.

Learn more about this noxious weed at the Mile-a-Minute Weed Conference at the Olde York Valley Inn in York on July 17-18.

"Mile-a-minute weed is fast-growing, dense, and smothers nearly every plant in its path, including small trees," said Nathan Hartwig, professor of weed science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "It's especially a problem where forests are clear cut because it smothers transplanted tree seedlings."

Presentations will cover information on controlling the weed in agronomic crops, crownvetch, reforested areas, and landscape and tree nurseries. Information also will be provided on the history, distribution, biology and ecology of the weed; related species in the state; and economic losses caused by the weed.

Speakers will include Hartwig; Larry Kuhns, professor of ornamental horticulture; Larry McCormick, professor of forest resources; Donald Windler of Towson State University; Wilbur Mountain, state botanist with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; and Alfred Gruber, owner of Conowingo Trees in Newark, Delaware.

Two graduate students also will present their research. C. Fagan Johnson, of Penn State, will discuss the weed's invasion of open areas in conifer and hardwood forests. Judith Gerlach, of George Mason University, will discuss biological and ecological factors in the southern progression of the weed.

Mile-a-minute weed was accidentally introduced from Asia into York County in the late 1930s by a nursery owner importing plants from Japan. It has spread to Adams, Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambria, Centre, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Fulton, Indiana, Lancaster, Lycoming, Mifflin, Perry, Philadelphia and Westmoreland counties. It also has been found in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Ohio and Virginia.

Landowners in the York area who have found serious infestations of the weed and would be willing to have their property toured by conference attendants are asked to contact Larry McCormick at (814) 865-3595 before July 7.

"Researchers also are interested in learning if the weed has spread to new areas," Hartwig said. People in counties or states other than those listed should contact Wilbur Mountain at (717) 772-5209.

The Mile-a-Minute Conference will take place July 17 and 18 at the Olde York Valley Inn, 3883 East Market Street in York. The $40 registration fee includes bus transportation for a field tour, coffee, and lunch on Tuesday. Call (717) 840-0748 for room reservations.

To preregister, contact Mile-a-Minute Weed Conference, The Pennsylvania State University, 306 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802-8301, (814) 865-8301. For more information, contact Nathan Hartwig at (814) 865-1906.

We changed the entire direction of the combine business. And your crops are going to thank us.

If you don't have a GLEANER®, you're putting your crop through sheer torture before it ever makes it to the bin. That's because old fashioned combines subject your wheat to as many as five changes of direction, at incredibly high speeds, as it winds its way through the harvesting process. The GLEANER R52 wouldn't ever be so cruel. Our unique transversely mounted Natural Flow Harvesting System gives your crop a smooth straight run, from the header, straight through to our gentle angle swivel unloading tube. All of which means more of the extremely clean grain sample the GLEANER has long been known for.

And a kinder, gentler way to farm.

GLEANER'S Natural Flow System feeds your crop straight through the harvesting process.

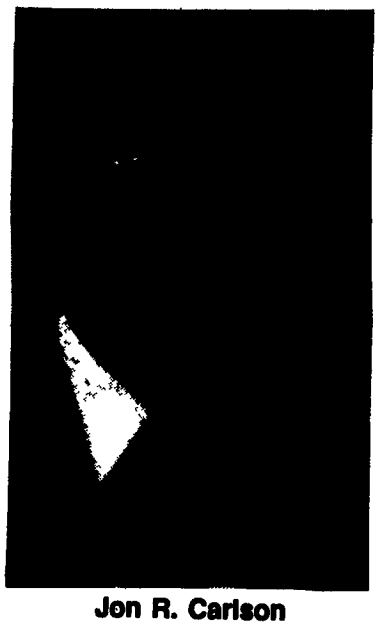
RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation announced the promotion of Jon R. Carlson to vice president, North American sales and marketing.

"Jon has the expertise and ability to continue the momentum of our North American sales and marketing organization," said Jean-Pierre Rosso, Case president and chief executive officer. "He brings to this position substantial experience with both our agricultural and construction equipment product lines, and he has demonstrated a commitment to delighting Case customers."

Carlson, who has more than 20 years in the industry, began his career with Case in 1990 as Southwestern regional manager. The following year he was named general manager, agricultural retail operations. He became vice president of North American retail operations in 1992 and last year was appointed vice president, North American construction equipment sales.



Jon R. Carlson

Herman F. Kosten will continue in his role as vice president, North American agricultural sales, reporting to Carlson.

Headquartered in Racine, Wis., Case Corporation is the second-largest maker of agricultural equipment in North America and the largest manufacturer and distributor of light- and medium-sized construction equipment in the world. Case products are sold in approximately 150 countries through a network of about 4,100 independent dealers and distributors.

SELMA, Ala.—Bush Hog's new model 2345QT loader brings rugged construction, durability, and superior performance to the 25 to 45 tractor PTO HP range.

"Bush Hog's focus on putting support line equipment first has resulted in a new loader design for 25 to 45 PTO HP tractors that assures a well matched loader/tractor combination," said Robert O. Bush Hog's new model 2345QT loader brings rugged construction, durability, and superior performance to the 25 to 45 tractor PTO HP range.

Available in colors to match the tractor, the new 2345QT loaders have a maximum lift height of 105 inches, clearance with attachment dumped of 84 inches, reach at a maximum height of 22 inches and lift capacity to full height of 1700 lbs. Pioneer Hires New Agronomist

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Gregory D. Binford, Ph.D., recently joined Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. as field sales agronomist. He will provide agronomic advice and support for Pioneer customers and sales representatives in southeastern Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey, and the Delmarva.

Most recently, Binford was assistant professor of agronomy and extension soil science at the University of Nebraska. He earned his doctorate and master's degrees in soil science from Iowa State University. He earned his bachelor's degree in agronomy from Clemson University after growing up on a corn and soybean farm in central Indiana.

Upgrade Your Computer Inexpensively

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — One of the biggest challenges facing those who are computerizing their farm and family records today is the rapid rate of change occurring in the computer industry.

Making the decision to purchase a new computer or upgrade your current one opens up possibilities to manage your personal affairs and maximize your farm profits with exciting new software programs such as Farm Works Software, which allows you to scan in ASCS maps of your farm and computerize your farm recordkeeping. Other software programs allow you to set up calendars of events on the farm or in your personal life, balance your checkbooks, do on-screen Bible study, etc.

For those considering purchasing a new computer system or software, the simple rule of thumb is to purchase the most current high-speed, innovative product available even though it may seem faster and more complex than necessary and may stretch your budget. An example of this is CD ROMs (those disk readers that use laser disks instead of floppies).

For those of us with older computer systems, the big question is whether we should purchase a new system or upgrade our current one. New products including microprocessor chip upgrades and a software program which doubles the amount of RAM memory (Random Access Memory). The upgrade chips will convert a 386 into a 486, or a 486 to a pentium, and are available from companies such as Cyrix and Texas Instruments. The RAM doubling software is called SoftRAM and, for about $70, it will virtually double 4 megs of physical RAM to 8 megs, 8 megs to 16, etc.

Anyone wishing to have a free comparative quote on computer hardware or software may call Nutrient Solutions in Agriculture at 800-270-0047.

Three-In-One Design Brings Versatility

BRILLION, Wis. — Brillion Iron Works introduces its new Soil Commander and, with it, ushers in the next generation of residue management.

The Soil Commander's design offers farmers the versatility of three tillage machines in one, making virtually any configuration of chisel plows and/or deep-ripper shank legs a possibility.

"Farmers who have field tested the Soil Commander have been very impressed," said Michael Irish, Brillion's marketing manager. "They can reconfigure this model quickly, usually just by changing a couple of bolts. It's ideal for loosening compaction and handling even the toughest residue."

The Soil Commander's design offers farmers the versatility of three tillage machines in one, making virtually any configuration of chisel plows and/or deep-ripper shank legs a possibility.

According to Irish, the Soil Commander's range of configurations, interchangeable shanks, heavy construction, and economical price make it perfect for mid-size farmers using 140-200 HP tractors.

Belarus Cites Tractor Production Milestone

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — The Belarus Minsk tractor plant produced its three millionth unit on June 7, according to Douglas Anderson, president of Anderson Tractor Sales, Inc., of Jacobus, Pa.

Doug Anderson said this milestone by the plant, located in the country of Belarus, a former republic in the Soviet Union, demonstrates the resources backing every Belarus tractor.

"Belarus is one of the largest tractor manufacturers in the world," Anderson said. "Our plants can produce tractors at a lower cost than American manufacturers, which gives us a real advantage."

Milwaukee-based BMI, which began selling Russian-manufactured farm tractors in 1970, is a unique success story in cooperative trade relations between the United States and the former Soviet Union, now the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS). Anderson said BMI imports 14 tractor models from the Minsk plant to facilities in Milwaukee and New Orleans, where they are fitted to American standards.

Heavy Duty Tub Grinder From Farmhand

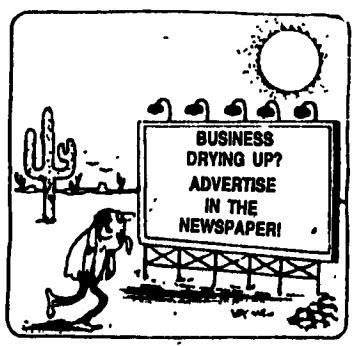
ATLANTA, Ga. — Farmhand introduces a new large, heavy-duty agricultural Tub Grinder designed for tractors in the 125-225 horsepower range.

The HG4050 Tub Grinder is ideal for grinding large round bales, large square bales, loose hay, stover, small grains and ear corn. A durable, simple machine, the HG4050 uses fewer moving parts than previous tub grinders.

Grinding is performed by a high-capacity 50-inch rotor using 3/8 inch thick, hard-faced, reversible, free-swinging hammers. A new electronic governor smoothly regulates infeeding to the rotor.

The governor ensures fast, continuous grinding of all types of material, under most moisture conditions. The large capacity, 11-foot 3-inch tub allows fast grinding of large square or round bales. Twenty-one screens are available, with openings from ¼ inch to 5¼ inches x 3¼ inches.

The HG4050 Tub Grinder is ideal for grinding large round bales, large square bales, loose hay, stover, small grains and ear corn.



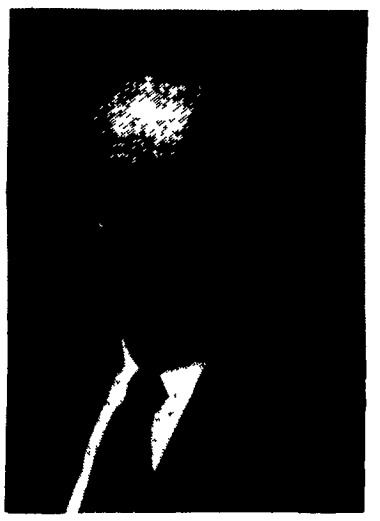
Appointment Emphasizes Long-Term Commitment

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation recently named Harold D. Boyanovsky to the newly created position of vice president, product support. He formerly was vice president of North American parts operations.

"Harold's vision and leadership have been responsible for the success of the North American parts organization and its enhanced responsiveness to dealer and customer needs," said Jean-Pierre Rosso, Case president and chief executive officer.

The parts organization has seen dramatic improvements under Boyanovsky's leadership the past three years. For example, for the first four months of this year, completed dealer orders (parts which dealers immediately obtained from their regional parts depot) were running at a rate of almost 90 percent compared to 82 percent in 1992. Also, in the last three years the number of backordered parts has been reduced by more than 72 percent.

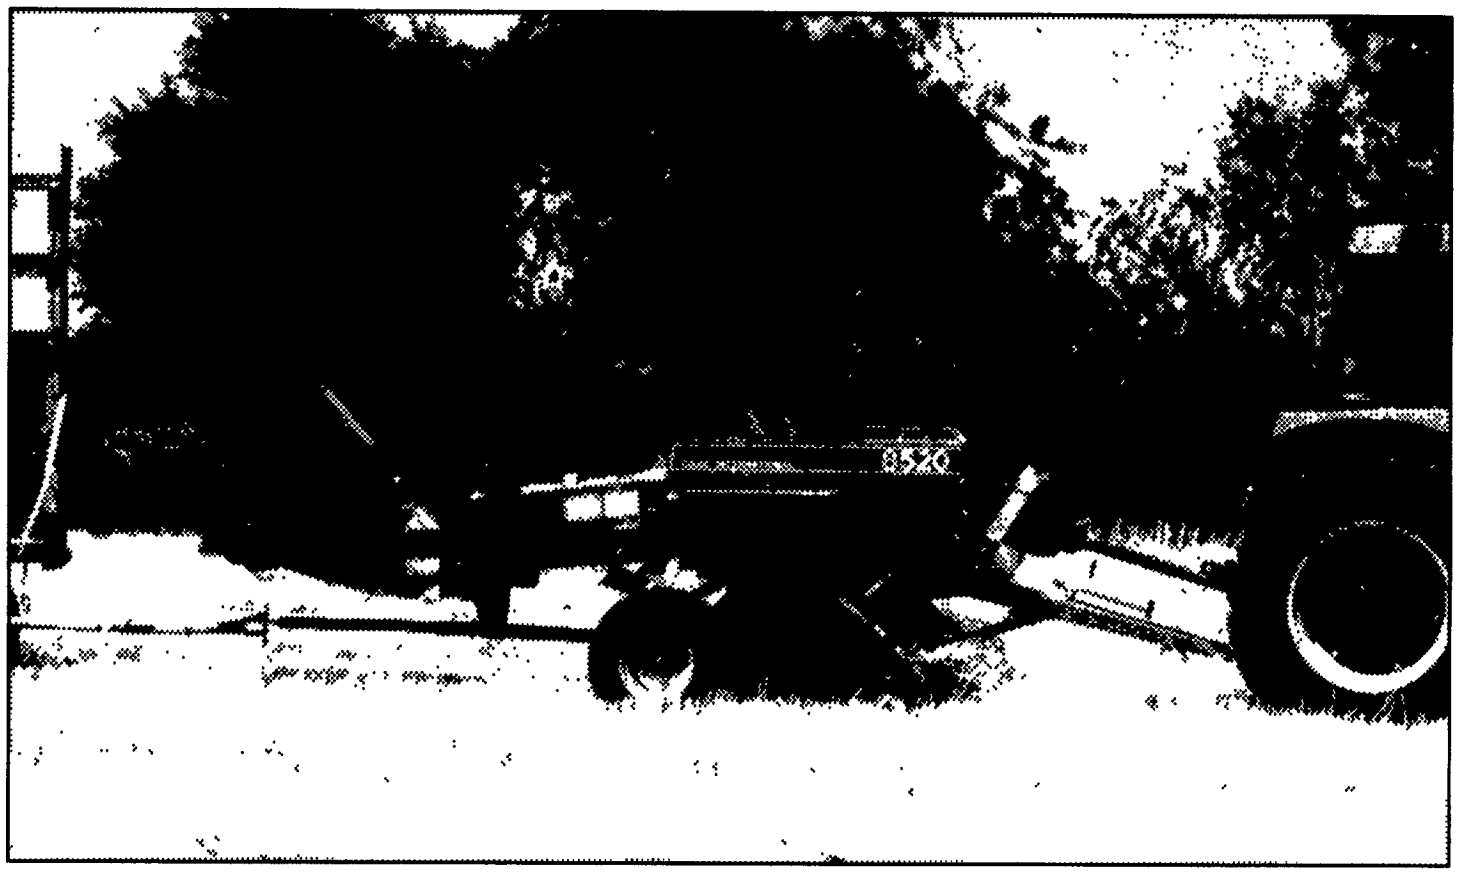
In his new position, Boyanovsky will be responsible for Case's total product-support initiative including parts, warranties and dealer communication systems.



Harold D. Boyanovsky

"Boyanovsky has held several executive positions at Case including vice president, worldwide product distribution and inventory control; vice president, construction equipment business development; and vice president, construction equipment sales. He also served as managing director of Case Australia and director of business development for Europe. Prior to joining Case, Boyanovsky held a variety of sales and marketing positions with International Harvester.

CENTER-LINE DESIGN ECONOMICAL PRICE



The benefits of the Case International 8520 center-line rectangular baler for a smaller operation are many. Narrow transport width. Easy in-field maneuverability. Gentle handling of hay. Uniform bale shape. And, a budget-minded price.

You'll appreciate the 8520 with the first bale you make. A wide, low-profile pickup and center-line feeding mean more leaves end up in the bale, not on the ground.

And, if that's not enough, there are a number of options available. A hydraulic pickup lift, flotation tires, hydraulic density control, wagon hitch and a choice of bale chutes or hydraulic bale thrower with electric controls.

Stop in and find out more about the Case International 8520 rectangular baler.

Pseudorabies Eradication Program Gains Momentum

BOWLING GREEN, Ky.— The National Pseudorabies Eradication Program is on target after more than seven years of a cooperative effort between hog producers, state veterinarians, regulatory agencies and others, including the Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI), who have a vested interest in the United States swine industry.

As of April 30, 1995, LCI reported that the number of pseudorabies infected swine operations in the U.S. dropped well below 5,000 herds-a definite sign of progress to those who have worked closely with the eradication program since its inception.

"The number of pseudorabies infected herds rose to a high of 7,713 in June, 1992," said Dr. Joseph Annelli, chief staff veterinarian for national animal health programs, USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. "The number of infected herds is the lowest since the national eradication program began."

"The significance of the trend is seeing progress throughout the entire nation-continuous progress," said Philip Bradshaw, chairman of the National Pseudorabies Control Board and a member of the board of directors for the Livestock Conservation Institute. Bradshaw, a pork producer from Illinois, chaired the first LCI Pseudorabies Committee when the organization formed the issue based committee to help facilitate the national eradication endeavor.

"Easy picking comes first," Bradshaw said. "Now, we must look for ways we can economically afford to eliminate the virus without causing problems for producers. We must not get complacent."

Others involved in the swine industry agree with Bradshaw that the program is working well and has resulted in greatly decreased numbers of infected herds.

The program has faced a lot of apathy since the beginning, said Dr. Arnold Taft of the National Animal Health Programs, USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. However, during the last four years, approximately 10,000 herds have been "cleaned up," he said. "Some producers don't feel it pays to clean up because they have to make management changes," Taft said. "But, when they do, they decide it's fun to raise pigs again."

Neal Black, secretary of the National Pseudorabies Control Board, said that the numbers are down because the disease is not spreading rapidly and infected herds are being cleaned up faster than new infected herds are being found. "We are making real progress," said Black. "The program has reached the downhill slope.

"More than 99 percent of the infected herds are in only 11 states," Black said. The industry's goal is to complete eradication of this disease by the year 2000.

Dr. Beth Lautner, vice president, swine health and pork safety, with the National Pork Producers Council agrees with Black. "The pork industry is extremely pleased to reach this milestone in the eradication program," she said. "Pork producers are committed to continued progress in the program in achieving the industry's goal of eradication."

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production...harvesting...storage...purchases...delivery to animals. Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your feed from a poured concrete silo.

"As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: This can have as great an influence on Profit as milk price changes."

Protect your valuable feeds from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice, wind and the sun's heat. Reduce the stress. INCREASE THE EFFICIENCY OF YOUR FEEDS, LABOR, AND LIVESTOCK!

At Sollenberger Silos Corp. we know a lot about feed storage and handling; we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call...We'd like to contribute to your success!!

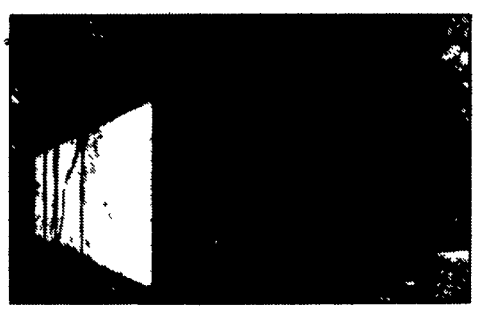
Side with Alumax ALU-TUFF Steel



When you put up a building, you expect it to be attractive and to last. A building constructed with ALU-TUFF will meet those expectations. That's because ALU-TUFF is made using top-quality materials, super-tough protective coatings, and a unique rib design that's both functional and attractive.

Years from now when other buildings are starting to show their age, your building will still look good.

- A STRONG PROFILE High 3/4-inch ribs on nine-inch centers give ALU-TUFF exceptionally high spanning properties for its weight and thickness, while stiffening ribs in flat areas prevent rippling.
- MADE TO LAST To keep Alu-Tuff working hard and looking good for years to come, we protect it with an oven-cured system of four different coatings.
- A GREAT LOOKING PANEL You don't have to sacrifice good looks to get a tough steel panel.
- MORE QUALITY FEATURES Each ALU-TUFF sheet is 38 inches wide to provide 36-inch coverage. That's wide enough to minimize the number of side laps, yet narrow enough to be easy to handle.

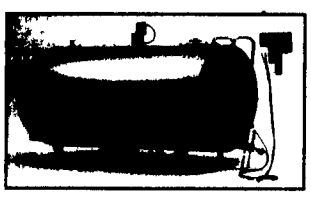
DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk.

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller® milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

DWK LADY ASHLEY C7-DUNWALKE FARM GELBVIEH (Gelp-free)

BEEF FIELD DAY

"BEEF BREEDING BASICS — COMMERCIAL/SEEDSTOCK/YOUTH"
Saturday, July 29, 1995 • Dunwalke Farm, Far Hills, New Jersey
Advance Registration Requested

The afternoon program will start with a special segment to help youngsters develop successful youth projects. Following this will be practical sessions for cattle producers covering breeding and calving topics.

Also, Dr. Lowell Wilson, Penn State University, will discuss methods of storing and feeding round bales. Dr. Jim Gibb, Executive Director of the American Gelbvieh Association, and Dr. John Hough, Vice President Education and Research for the American Polled Hereford association will share some timely ideas about marketing alternatives.

For those unfamiliar with the Gelbvieh breed, Gelbvieh-sired crossbred females ranked #1 among 24 beef breeds evaluated at the national Meat Animal Research Center (MARC) for pounds of calf weaned per cow exposed. This is the result of the Gelbvieh breed's maternal, early growth, and fertile characteristics. The breed's carcass qualities are evidenced by Monfort-Con Agra's initiation of special formula pricing for Gelbvieh-cross steers for its expanding close trim market.

Cattle from Dunwalke Farm's herd of over 500 head of Polled Hereford and Gelbvieh seedstock will be available to see. Call the farm office for advance registration and directions.

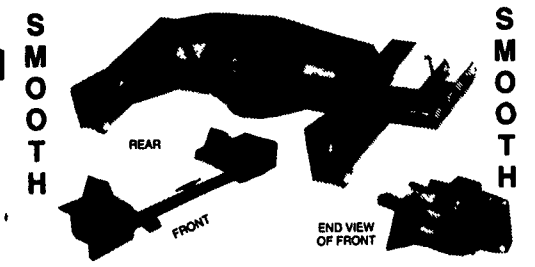
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system

Optional 12 volt compressor allows changing air pressure setting on the go.

Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks. Available soon for Dodge Dakota models.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips.

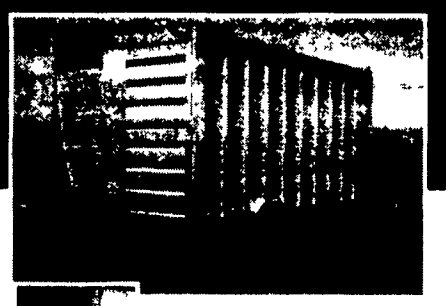
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Summer Heat Requires Extra Care In Livestock Handling

BOWLING GREEN, Ky.—The temperature and humidity are in a race to reach triple digits, and your air conditioner is working overtime. You wouldn't dare go outside in such weather for more than a few minutes, and even then you drink plenty of fluids.

All too often, though, such precautions aren't heeded by those who handle livestock. The results can be devestating, even deadly, for livestock during the hot, humid summer months.

"This is the critical time of the year for transporting livestock," said Glenn Slack, executive director of the Bowling Green, Ky.-based Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI). "Common-sense procedures should be followed in reducing the risk factors relating to moving animals in extreme temperatures."

According to "Livestock Trucking Guide," a Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI) publication authored by Dr. Temple Grandin of Colorado State University, each year 80,000 hogs leave the farm but never reach market. Death losses often double on hot, humid days.

Cattle losses aren't as great, but heat and humidity can increase shrinkage (weight loss) and stress, reducing an animal's ability to fight disease and even affecting reproductive performance.

That translates into a dollar-and-cents loss for livestock producers. But is doesn't have to, explains Grandin, a member of LCI's board of directors. She says some common-sense precautions can help livestock producers avoid the deadly consequences of heat and humidity.

Among Grandin's hot-weather tips:

•During hot weather, livestock should be hauled at night or early morning.

•Instead of straw, use wet sand or wet shavings for bedding.

•Remove grain slats from farm trucks to provide more ventilation. Also, open nose vents for ventilation.

•Load and unload promptly. Heat will build up rapidly inside a stationary vehicle.

•Transport 10-to-20 percent fewer animals than normal during hot weather.

•For hogs in particular, sprinkle the animals with water before loading.

But, cautions Grandin, don't pour cold water on an overheated hog.

"That's one thing you have to be careful about," Grandin said. "If you throw cold water on an overheated hog, it can shock its system."

Grandin emphasizes that all these precautions are particularly important for hogs because they don't have functioning sweat glands.

"Pigs don't sweat," she said. "It's sort of like wearing a diver's wet suit all the time. You can imaging what that would be like."

To help livestock producers and transporters understand the dangers of heat, LCI has produced a Livestock Weather Safety Index which breaks down the heat-and-humidity levels into three categories: alert, danger and emergency. When the index reaches the emergency zone, producers should postpone hog shipments until the weather moderates.

In addition to the Livestock Weather Safety Index, LCI has produced three publications-"Livestock Handling Guide," "Livestock Trucking Guide," and "Handling Pigs"-which address the dangers of heat and humidity. LCI also offers videos on the proper handling and transportation procedures for swine and beef and dairy cattle. For more information about these educational resources, call LCI at (502) 782-9798.

WHAT IS THE ECONOMIC FORECAST FOR POULTRY MEAT IN 2005?

R. Michael Hulet
Associate Professor
Of Poultry Science

Poultry production is expected to increase by 3.2 percent this year, pushing the output of total meat in the U.S. to 74,178 million pounds, said David Amey in the April 1995 issue of Meat Processing. The increase has been largely attained by the largest companies. During 1994, the five largest broiler companies produced 44.4 percent while the five largest turkey companies produced 48 percent of the total respective broiler or turkey meat in the U.S. Both percentages are up from five years ago. This means that the trend for merging of smaller companies with larger ones is continuing.

Broilers

In a recent Meat Processing article, an economic forecast for meat production for the next decade was reported by Dr. Gordon C. Rausser, dean of the College of Natural Resources and R. G. Sproul, distinguished professor in the Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics at the University of California, Berkeley. They noted the tremendous success of broiler production in the 1980s because of the comparative price to consumers for high-protein broiler meat, the production efficiencies and genetic improvements of broilers, and the tightly integrated system of production from hatching eggs through sales to retail stores or foodservices. However, they thought that chicken's price advantage would narrow relative to red meats because of the increase of value-added poultry products that will be produced in the future. The market share of broilers is predicted to somewhat stabilize shortly after the year 2000, with total broiler production expected to increase by one percent per year for the next decade.

Turkeys

Per capita turkey consumption in the U.S. is small in comparison to broilers, beef, and pork (19 vs. 74, 68, and 54 pounds, respectively). However, the neutral taste of turkey meat, the consistency of the product, and the relative price makes it ideal for the further processed markets of the next decade. Rausser predicts that market share for turkey meat will be up and could dramatically increase if product acceptability by consumers for value-added products is enhanced. Another factor that will help determine the success of the turkey industry in the next decade is the fiscal stability of the Mexican and Middle-European export markets.

Beef

After falling 10 pounds in per capita consumption during the 1990s, demand for beef has stabilized. Since neither the price of beef is expected to appreciably change, nor is the marketing of value-added beef products, its market share may continue to decline from current levels. Rausser stated that the growing meat market, especially in the area of value-added products, will leave the beef industry behind unless tremendous changes in the cost structure, product consistency, and marketing of value-added products occurs.

Pork

Tremendous progress has been made by pork producers in developing a genetically lean and consistent product. The use of brand name products has allowed pork to maintain per capita consumption in the U.S. in spite of the decreases in "the other" red meat. Continued efforts in brand marketing, the genetic advances in lean, efficient pork, and the move to produce more value-added pork products will result in a slight increase in the meat market share by the year 2000 for pork.

Fish

The last meat commodity reported on was fish. The per capita consumption of fish has grown only marginally and will not continue to increase in the next decade. The major problems with this industry are lack of a sustainable supply, the comparative price of aquaculture production versus the price for open-water fish, and the difficulty in marketing fish-farm raised products. Because of these problems, fish is not thought to be able to take market share away from the other meat commodities like once believed.

International Markets

Since we live in a world economy, the supply and production of other countries will have a greater effect on our meat industries. The following table lists the consumption, production, and C-P (consumption minus production) in million metric pounds of ready to cook meat for world production areas.

This table shows the potential for exportation of meat supplies into Central and South American, European and Eastern European markets. Rausser believes that the significant entrance into these markets will depend on globalization of financial markets, the emergence of large worldwide trading blocks, off-shore sources

RISA Announces Field Days

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — The Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture (RISA) Program, which is addressing long-term farm issues in southeast Pennsylvania, recently announced its 1995 schedule of sustainable farm field days.

RISA is working with dairy operators and vegetable producers in the region who are evaluating sustainable farming technologies and other innovative strategies for sustaining the long-term viability of their farming operations. The purpose of the farm field days is to provide other farmers and interested non-farmers with the opportunity to observe and evaluate these practices being used on working farms.

RISA is a cooperative project being conducted by Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA), Penn State University, Rodale Institute, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Reading Terminal Farmers Market, and the League of Women Voters. The project is based in 10 southeastern counties and is focused on the viability of the food system infrastructure of these counties. RISA activities seek to identify and broaden the understanding of barriers to and opportunities for sustaining agriculture in the region.

RISA is conducting on-farm demonstrations to test new agricultural practices with innovative farmers and to share the results with the widest possible audience. The farm field days are an excellent opportunity for farmers and the public to see sustainable agriculture in action.

A contact person has been listed with each field day for directions and other information.

of agricultural inputs, reduction of trade barriers, and uniformity of production regulations.

This total picture of the domestic and international meat consumption markets gives a very promising picture for the production of poultry products for the next decade. The efforts as a poultry industry in Pennsylvania need to focus on capitalizing on those markets that are competitive and profitable and that will remain that way in the future.

Ethics Symposium In December

BOWLING GREEN, Ky.—Self-examination, unification, education, and enforcement will be the focus for the first National Youth Livestock Program Ethics Symposium to be held December 1-2 in Las Vegas, Nev.

Following the recent disclosure of cases of unethical and illegal activity associated with youth livestock programs across the United States, the symposium is a cooperative effort among several agriculture entities to bring national action to the issue.

The Livestock Conservation Institute (LCI) will serve as the facilitating organization for the event which is expected to draw an attendance of several hundred people. The mission of the symposium is to provide a forum for individuals and organizations involved in youth livestock programs and competitive events. Participants will have the opportunity to build consensus on educational initiatives and enforcement codes to reduce or eliminate the incidences of unethical and illegal activities related to youth livestock events.

"While the vast majority of exhibitors at youth and open livestock expositions are responsible stewards of livestock, the actions of an unethical few individuals could very well endanger the future existence of 4-H and FFA-sponsored livestock programs," said Dr. Jeff Goodwin, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, who is chair of the Symposium Planning Committee.

"Until now, these unethical few have been able to work behind a curtain of silence provided by a reticent agricultural community," said Goodwin, who also serves as chair for the LCI Livestock Care Committee. "The consensus must be established that the livestock industry will not tolerate illegal or unethical activity associated with youth and open livestock expositions."

According to Cindy Crume, an offical of the Livestock Conservation Institute, the Symposium Planning Committee consists of representatives from many segments of animal agricultural including the American Veterinary Medical Association, the National FFA Organization, the Animal Industry Foundation, the American Farm Bureau Federation, and the United States Department of Agriculture.

The National Youth Livestock Program Ethics Symposium will:

- Foster self-examination of current practices and procedures utilized in the exposition of livestock.
- Provide an opportunity to organize a unified approach to the issues surrounding ethics in youth livestock programs.
- Establish educational initiatives for both youth and adults by promoting existing resources and incorporating progressive symposium outcomes.
- Increase awareness of enforcement options and develop a plan of action for enforcing ethics codes and established rules and regulations within events.

The symposium is targeted toward state FFA and 4-H leaders, agricultural education instructors, extension agents, fair and exposition management professionals, commodity and farm organization representatives, agribusiness representatives, breed association representatives, state departments of agriculture (shows and fairs personnel), veterinarians, media, and anyone with an interest in youth livestock ethics.

For more information concerning the National Youth Livestock Program Ethics Symposium, contact the Livestock Conservation Institute at (502) 782-9798.

Ag Department Awards Grants

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius announced the Manheim FFA has been awarded a $15,000 matching grant and a $2,500 direct grant through the department's Agriculture and Rural Youth Organization Grant Program.

The matching grant will be used to construct an environmental laboratory for the FFA's use at Manheim Central High School. The direct grant will be used to purchase a video microscopy system for use in the agricultural curriculum at the school.

The Ecological Systems Laboratory (ESL) will contain laboratory facilities for the study of aquaculture, hydroponics, and horticulture. The lab will also be available for use by the Science and Home Economics departments.

Agricultural study is a graduation requirement in the Manheim School District. Many of the students using the lab will also be considering careers in agriculture.

The department's grant will be matched by area merchants and agribusinesses, Manheim Young Farmers Supporters and the Manheim FFA. The Manheim FFA's agricultural advisory committee is donating labor and technical support.

The video microscopy system uses a video camera placed over a microscope to project an image on a color monitor. The system will be used to display microscope slides, illustrate specimens, demonstrate instruments, display diagrams and show dissections.

Students will be encouraged to work cooperatively with others using the system to solve problems and explore agricultural science.

Under the Agriculture and Rural Youth Organization Grant Program, youth organizations such as 4-H and FFA apply for direct grants of up to $2,500 and matching grants of up to $15,000.

Direct grants may be used to fund educational projects, programs and seminars and matching grants may be used to fund capital projects and equipment purchases.

STATE OF THE SWINE INDUSTRY — 10 OBSERVATIONS

1. Operations Are Getting Fewer And Larger

The number of swine operations has dropped from 661,700 in 1975 to 208,780 in 1994. In 1988, only 3 percent of operations had 1,000 hogs or more, and they accounted for about 36 percent of the national inventory. By 1994, the number of operations with at least 1,000 hogs doubled, now accounting for 55 percent of the inventory.

2. Production Is Going Up, Price Is Going Down

About a year ago, the National Pork Producers Council predicted a "mountain of meat" for 1995, which corresponds to the 1995 projections here. However, the price disaster in the fall of 1994 seemed to catch everyone off guard. If this production trend continues, low market prices may become a way of life.

Year	Slaughter (millions)	Price $/cwt
1990	85.1	54.48
1991	88.2	48.88
1992	94.9	42.30
1993	93.1	45.44
1994	95.6	39.53
1995*	97.0	39-41

* Projected. Grimes and Plain, 1995.

3. Producer/Packer Price Contracts Are Becoming A Reality

Many of the major U.S. packers are engaged in price arrangements with producers:

Farmland Foods — Serious and open about contracting efforts.

Monfort (ConAgra) — Not discussed openly, but reportedly price varies with location and carcass quality.

Hatfield Quality Meats — Available to some producers depending on quality and numbers.

Excel (Cargill) — Some contracting, volume uncertain.

IBP — Ties to producers but not to price.

4. The Retail-To-Farm Price Spread Is Increasing

The Morgan Research Group (Garnett, Kan.) has calculated various indexes relating to marketing trends. Using 1985 as the base year for comparison, they set the live hog demand index and the retail demand index at 100. Since that time, the retail demand index has fallen slightly to 95, while the live hog index has dropped to 85. This indicates consumers are willing to pay nearly as much for pork, but live hog prices have not remained as strong. This phenomenon frustrated many producers this past fall who were selling hogs at $25/cwt while retail prices remained relatively unchanged.

5. North Carolina Is A Force To Be Reckoned With

North Carolina, as a state, now ranks number two in hog production just behind Iowa. In the table below, note that North Carolina's inventory has more than doubled in just four years. Its inventory is half as large as that of Iowa's, but there are only one fourth as many producers. The state has probably led the nation in the adoption of new production practices, including large-scale facilities, multiple site production, and the use of artificial insemination.

Iowa:

14.2 million hogs in Mar '95 (13.5 million in '91)

29,000 producers

Breeding herd inventory was down 18 percent in Dec. '94, and dropped another 9 percent by Mar '95

North Carolina:

7.2 million hogs in Mar '95 (2.9 million in '91)

7,000 producers

82 percent of production contracted

Cash receipts for hogs now roughly equals that of tobacco.

6. If IBP Locates A Plant In The Carolinas, Changes Will Be Felt

Iowa Beef Processors (IBP) has been reportedly considering the construction of new packing plant for processing hogs somewhere in the Southeast. The increased slaughter capacity it would bring to the region would hopefully boost the market price base for the entire East Coast.

But there are producers who fear that other packers may not be able to compete, leading to consolidation or even an eventual loss in kill capacity.

7. There Is Little Profit In $40 Hogs

Using a hypothetical 1000-sow farrow to finish operation, corn at $2.75/bushel and productivity at 18 pigs/sow/year, the current bottom line with $40 hogs is about minus $7,500. Increase sow productivity to 20 pigs/sow/year and the profit jumps to $79,000. Shave 25 cents off the price of corn, and profit increases another $58,000. Add $5/cwt onto the price of hogs, and net income jumps by another $230,000 to $367,000.

These numbers simply tell us that, in order to make money in the hog business, things must go right. Minor changes in productivity, the cost of inputs, or price of hogs have an incredible influence on income.

8. The Industry Is Beating A Path To Integration

Here are six of the top-ten hog producers and their ties to packing plants.

National Rank	Name	No. Sows	Packer Connection
1	Murphy's	200,000	Owns 3% of Smithfield Packing
2	Carroll's	110,000	Owns 13% of Smithfield Packing
3	Tyson	97,000	Owns a packing plant
4	Premium Std Farms	96,800	Owns a packing plant, building another?
6	Cargill	77,000	Owns Excel Smithfield
		70,500	Owns two packing plants

9. All That Glitters Is Not Gold

As fast as the industry seems to be expanding, and as immune as the "big" producers appear to be to price squeezes, there are signs that the armor is cracking:

• Recently it was reported that Premium Standard Farm's (PSF) plans for sow expansion 20,000 to 80,000 sows in Hereford, Texas are on hold. Plans to build a packing plant in the same area to compliment the sow operation are also on the back burner.

• The Hunter/Fitch Bill is being debated in the North Carolina legislature that would affect hog operations statewide. Provisions of the bill would institute permits, setbacks, inspections, and quarterly inventory reports.

• An April 1 rally in Putnam County, Mo. was recently staged against PSF's plans for construction of swine facilities. PSF claimed that a Missouri township passed zoning ordinances after sites were procured, and the company was asking the court for nearly $8 million in damages. PSF later dropped the request after the intervention of Jesse Jackson.

10. Anything That Can Go Wrong Usually Does

The major problem in the hog industry has been the low market price. Not far behind is a swelling concern for the environment. Producers can handle nutrients safely and effectively, but because the pig retains less than half of what we feed him, there are a lot of nutrients to handle. This issue is solvable, within certain constraints, not the least of which is manure volume. But there are few solutions to the odor problem. The best technology so far is maximizing distance from the farm to the neighbor. If there were (as so many companies claim) a material available to render manure nearly odorless, everyone would be using it. But there isn't and the potential for environmental problems increases with the size of the operation.

The demand equation is ever changing. Competition from poultry continues to mount in the form of more pounds and more creative products. So far, pork has taken minimal hits from the drug residue/hormone debate. Will that change if and when PST is approved? As if there weren't enough challenges already, enter the Porcine Reproductive and Respiratory Syndrome virus. This new virus is taking its toll across the nation (including Pennsylvania) in the form of reduced sow productivity and major respiratory problems in the growing pig. Control measures continue to evolve, but an effective solution has not yet been developed.

Summary

Changes in the swine industry are inevitable. Depressed prices over the past eight months have created negative cash flows for even the best of producers. Many have rushed to establish ties with packers and the situation has hastened the trend toward total vertical integration.

In Pennsylvania, many good producers have been forced to liquidate.

RISA Announces Field Days

•September 12, 10 a.m.-12 p.m. — Managing Milkhouse Waste Water with Jet Pulse Irrigation, Lane and Judy Sollenberger Dairy, Fayetteville, Franklin County. For information: Carrie Clark or Lantz Soubier, (717) 264-3480 Falling Spring Environmental Services Inc.

Field day will host speakers and demonstration of this equipment. Lane, a fourth generation farmer on the farm, is PA DHIA President. The farm features 3 x/day milkings, 170 registered Holstein cows, and 130 head of replacements. With limited manure storage and proximity to streams, new ways to manage dilute milkhouse wastes is a concern. Irrigation instead of storage is being considered. A nutrient management plan is in place.

Sponsored by Ridge & Valley Network, Falling Spring Environmental Services Inc., PA Crop Management Association, Dairy Network Partnership, and PASA.

•September 21, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. — Considerations for Late Season Dairy Grazing, Titus Martin Farm and Curtis Knepper Farm near Fayetteville, Franklin County. For information: Titus Martin, (717) 352-3740 or PASA.

These two dairy operations will host pasture walks and speakers to discuss the nuts and bolts of planning for this fall and next spring's grazing. Features Knepper's 65 cow Holstein/Guernsey herd in their first year as graziers and Martin's 90 cow Holstein herd in their third full year. Farmers will share ideas on how to get started in grazing, and equipment, nutritional programs and information that they have found useful and economical. Lunch will be provided.

Sponsored by Ridge and Valley Network, Franklin County Graziers, Dairy Network Partnership, and PASA

•September 23, 1 p.m.-4:30 p.m. — Community Composting Field Day, Barbara and Kerry Sullivan, Kimberton CSA, David Griffith, Seven Stars Dairy, Kimberton Waldorf School, Kimberton, Chester County. For information: Cary Oshins (610) 683-1415.

Four different composting technologies, all involving community waste resources, will be highlighted. These composting systems will be relevant for consumers, farmers, students, and municipal leaders. The Sullivans operate one of the oldest community supported agriculture farms in the U.S. using biodynamic methods. They compost wastes generated from their vegetable and fruit operation. Seven Stars, a biodynamic/organic dairy, is composting its dairy manures. The Waldorf school composts its lunch food wastes. Municipal leaves from Phoenixville are composted and utilized on the farming operations. The PAWS system (passively aerated windrow) of composting will be featured.

Sponsored by RISA and the Biodynamic Association.

•October 26, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. — Using Small Grains/Brassicas to Extend the Grazing Season, Nevin and Audrey Mast Dairy Farm, Oley, Berks County. For information: Jonda Crosby (610) 378-1135.

The Mast Farm is a dairy crop farm of 50 cows and 120 acres, using minimum chemicals in the crop production system. About 50 acres is used for intensive grazing. The field day will look at use of small grains and brassicas as a strategy for extending the grazing season. AGCO ALLIS
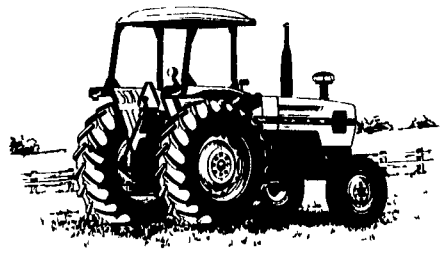
MODEL 5670 TRACTOR

UTILITY VERSATILITY



The AGCO Allis 5670 utility tractor offers fuel efficiency, reliable drawbar and PTO power, and excellent maneuverability in the 63 PTO hp range. They're also backed by a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

• Air- and oil-cooled diesel reliability. The 4-cylinder air-cooled and oil-cooled diesel engine delivers 63 PTO hp in the 5670 with a 22% torque rise. It also eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines. Plus, it is among the best in fuel consumption tests.

• Lots of speed choices. The synchro-power transmission with synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch. The optional transmissions include 16 forward and 16 reverse with creeper speeds and a dual-speed of 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds and is available with either 2WD or AWD.

• PTO power to do more. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are available.

• Quality features put you in control. The 5600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes, and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns.

Learn more about the 5600 Series tractors or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Don't Miss This New Case IH Oil Bath Drive 9' Model 8340 Mower Conditioner

FULL-FEATURED PERFORMER

The Case International 8340 mower conditioner offers you features in a 9 foot plus cutting width that you'd only expect to find as options, or. on a larger more expensive machine.

Features like a heavy box-beam frame and tongue that you hydraulically position from the tractor. Quickly steer around field obstacles or switch between field and transport positions. Low maintenance describes the 1700-stroke per minute sickle. Sickle sections bolt-on for quick and convenient replacement.

A five-bat reel feeds the crop uniformly into the conditioning rolls. Rolls automatically separate to reduce the chance of plugging.

Best Buys in Used Equipment

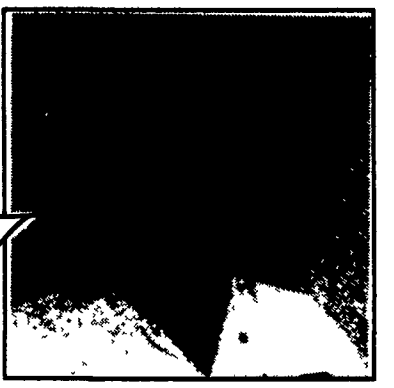
We Stand Behind Every Axial Flow Combine Reconditioned by Hoober Combine Specialists!



Don Carper Says,

"When a salesman trades an Axial Flow Combine, he has my men prepare a detailed report of everything needed to repair the machine so it is ready to work with no or minimal downtime during the year's grain and corn/bean season. My men and I want the combine fixed right! We're the one's who stand behind it when a farmer buys it."

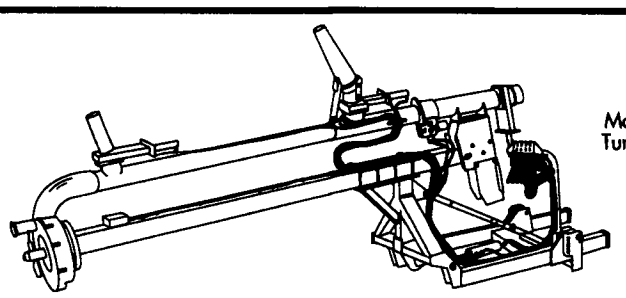
MANURE HAPPENS!

Badger

Badger's New Turbo Pit Pump is designed to handle it!



NEW Model BN500 Turbo Pit Pump!
The pump designed for the big, tough jobs!

- Here it is! The pit pump with the agitation capacity of 4 - 5,000 GPM. Here's a pit pump that is built farm tough to last year after year.
- The 6-blade impellor and a turbo flow pump inlet provides maximum cutting action and aggressive flow at maximum pressure.
- The lower bearing is designed with a 5-seal system and a totally enclosed oil-bath housing. A conveniently located reservoir, grease lines and fittings make it easy to maintain.
- The tapered upper nozzle is designed with a stainless steel ball pivot with a vertical range of 55 degrees to break up and blast through thick crust.
- The hydraulic control console features a 4-spool valve that controls all pump agitation requirements, putting all the major pump controls in the hands of the operator at one location.

Looking for a better combine?

Look To Massey-Ferguson First.

The quality and features you need.
If your crop and harvesting conditions were always ideal, you might be able to get by with a lessor combine. But in the real world of down, tangled crops, rocks, weeds, wet weather, soft ground and early winters you need M-F 8450 and MF 8460 combine performance and reliability.
For example, an efficient conventional cylinder is teamed with a Positive Separation Process for greater harvesting capacity.
The center-mounted cab provides excellent visibility while it floats on rubber dampers to reduce noise and vibrations.
And Mercedes Benz diesel engines are respected world wide for their reliability, torque reserve and fuel economy.
But most of all, owners like the overall quality and reliability that make harvesting quick and profitable.

CLAAS Rollant round balers give you what you want

—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20.

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention.

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life.

Call now to see how you can improve the round figures on your bottom line.

Five Sure-Fire Ways to Reduce Milk Production

With all the talk of milk surpluses and low milk prices, it seems that there are some dairy producers who have volunteered to help reduce the supply of milk. Some of the techniques I have seen them use are:

1. Limiting the amount of total mixed ration (TMR) offered to cows. The cows are forced to eat the last milligram of feed in the bunk before more is offered.

2. Limiting access to water. One waterer for 100 cows will limit milk production. Dirty water tanks also is a common way to limit milk production.

3. Ignoring cow comfort. Making cows stand, rathering than having a comfortable place to lie; having no fans in the barn; and having no shade over the feed bunks are all common ways to ignore cow comfort.

4. Raising small first-lactation heifers. Up to one-third of the milking herd is first-lactation animals, and if they calve at a light weight (less than 1200 lbs. after calving) they won't milk up to their potential. Later they can go through a second-lactation (sophomore) slump, which further limits herd milk production.

5. Feeding low energy grain mixes to high producing cows. Cows won't peak to their potential, thus reducing their total lactation milk yield by 220 lbs. for each 1 pound peak milk loss. Body condition also suffers, thereby reducing breeding efficiency and increasing herd days-in-milk.

Luckily, there aren't too many producers willing to volunteer for this type of program!

Attention to details will help AVOID these types of situations, and will allow your herd to maximize efficiency of production, thereby reducing the unit cost of producing a hundred-weight of milk. Ask your Purina Mills representative for information and ideas that will help you achieve maximum efficiency of milk production for your herd.

Contact your Purina representative for further evaluation of your situation.
